The creation of these universities is not about being ambitious, but doing what is proper for the people of Lagos State. It is about the future of our citizens. It is about the future of our youths and about our commitment to taking tertiary education to a level that we would all be proud of. It is all about ensuring that we give hope and opportunity to our teeming youths who believe in us to do the right thing.”

THE EXECUTIVE
GOVERNOR OF
LAGOS STATE

From the Editor-in-Chief

ne year has passed since the National Universities Commission, NUC, gave clearance certificates of operations to the Lagos State University of Education, Ijanikin, and the Lagos State University of Science and Technology, Ikorodu. Early February 2023, LASUED's pioneer students, 3,300 of them, matriculated, thus opening a new chapter in tertiary education in Lagos State.

The protracted journey to getting the school registered was championed by Governor Babajide Sanwo-Olu, without whose sheer conviction and commitment to expanding access to university education for Lagosians with a desire for quality, specialised education, we would not be here today. The establishment of the two universities adds copious and colourful chapters to his catalogue of achievements.

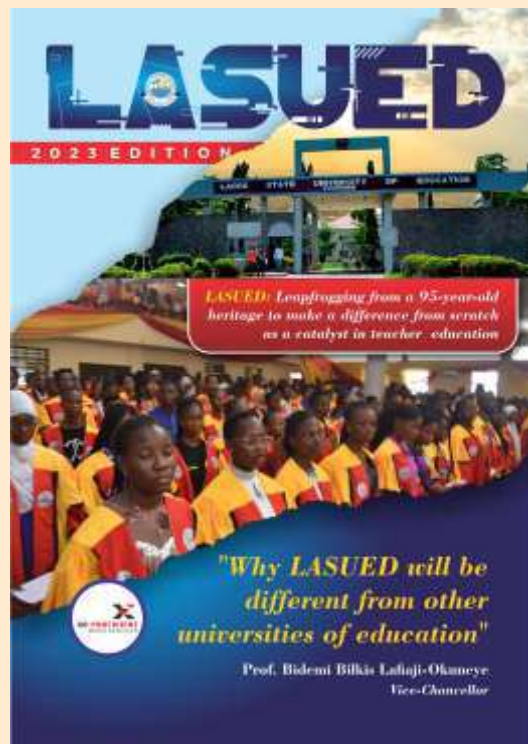

Education is a major plank in the T.H.E.M.E.S Agenda of Governor

Sanwo-Olu. In the sector, he has continued to shine like porcelain in the sun with ingenious reforms and initiatives that are all geared towards enhancing, enthroning, and entrenching qualitative tertiary education for today's and tomorrow's Lagosians; and a more vibrant educational sector that would be the pride of all.

Thankfully, he has Tokunbo Wahab, the affable Special Adviser on Education, to help him actualise some of his ideas. Noteworthy and commendably, too, is that Wahab used his perch and passion for education to achieve this particular feat.

One of the biggest errors of our heritage as a nation, which has adversely affected this generation particularly, is the failure to properly and periodically document in enduring forms significant events of our chequered history and the roles of outstanding men and women who created the history. Such important documentation helps to put people's contributions and achievements into proper historical perspectives.

What we have done in this publication, therefore, is to capture the conceptualisation, birth, and trajectory of the institution from the prisms of those who played active roles in its establishment and were at the centre of its remarkable evolution.

As you would find out, we spoke with all the kings in the two host communities, the academics, stakeholders, and the lawmakers whose legislative masterstroke ensured the birth of LASUED.

Many people made our job so much easy. The Vice-Chancellor, Prof. Bidemi Bilkis Lafraji-Okuneye, who believes in our proposition to recall and record how LASUED evolved, ranks high. She was always on hand to respond to all the queries and enquiries from our team, no matter what time of the day it was. And we did have tons of them. We thank her immensely for her support, encouragement, accessibility, and faith in us.

Our profound appreciation goes to Mr Hunyingan Dare Peter, the official photographer of LASUED, who magnanimously and enthusiastically supplied us with a lot of photographs that proved invaluable for this publication. We cannot thank him enough.

While thanking profoundly all those who contributed to the success of this publication, both those you would encounter on these pages and those who worked with us behind the scene, I hope that you will enjoy reading it as much as we did putting it together. And that you will come to the same conclusions as our team that the dream that birthed the universities was noble; the dramatis personae behind them are patriots; the wait was well worth it; and the brains and brawns driving the dream and propelling it to a brighter future are best choices. Instructively, with what has happened in just one year, the morning is already showing the day; and the future can only be bright. Very bright!

Prologue

“LASUED was not established simply to add to the number of universities dotting the higher educational landscape of Nigeria. Instead, this teacher education institution was established to meet a felt need for a university that will make a wholesome difference in addressing the educational needs of the citizens.”

By Prof. Bidemi Bilkis Lafajji-Okuneye

The Lagos State University of Education (LASUED) is the unification of the former Adeniran Ogunsanya College of Education (AOCOED) and the Michael Otedola College of Primary Education (MOCPED). The main campus is located in Oto/Ijanikin with a campus at Noforija, Epe. With the approval by the National Universities Commission (NUC) and recognition by the Joint Admissions and Matriculation Board (JAMB) of the Lagos State University of Education in February 2022, we have commenced admissions into the Sixty-Seven (67) Take-Off programmes across seven colleges, which are: College of

Humanities Education (COHED), College of Science Education (COSED), College of Information and Technology Education (COITED), College of Vocational and Entrepreneurship Education (COVED), College of Management and Social Sciences

Education (COMSSED), College of Specialized and Professional Education (COSPED), and College of Language and Communication Arts Education (COLCAED).

With these colleges, you will find your own road and be assured that you won't walk it alone. We often are glad to make our shoulders readily available for you to stand on to see farther, clearer, and better.

LASUED was not established simply to add to the number of universities dotting the higher education landscape of Nigeria. Instead, this teacher education institution was established to meet a felt need for a university that will make a wholesome difference in addressing the educational needs of the citizens. The resolve of the Lagos State Government to meet this urgent need underscores the fusion of AOCOED and MOCPED to become the Lagos State University of Education. While MOCPED had remained a renowned specialist in primary education for almost three decades, AOCOED, which had a humble beginning in 1958 as a Grade III Teachers' College, had steadily progressed, first, to a Grade II Teachers' College, then to Advanced Teachers' College, and in 1986 transformed to a College of Education where teachers are trained for the award of Nigeria Certificate in Education (NCE). Until the transmutation, the two former colleges had successfully run the Sandwich Degree Programmes and later, Full-Time Degree Programmes in education in affiliation with other universities for over a decade. Significantly, we have been mono-course institutions from inception and trained teachers all our life. 'No other person backs a child better than the mother' suffices the explanation that we are most suitable for the assignment. We understand the business of teacher education; are endowed with quality manpower; parade adequate infrastructures; have the required experience, and are capable, ready, and willing to step up the game.

Above all, we are privileged to have scientifically discovered the enormous potential for teacher education innovation that is capable of driving the attainment of equity in education, and which ironically is dormant in many education systems today. Therefore, we are fully set to not only scale innovations from the margin to the centre of the teacher education system but also source, support, and sustain those superlative innovations that address inequality and provide all young people with the skills to build a better future for themselves, their communities, nations, and the world. Traditionally, we are confident that in less than a decade of our operation, we shall set forth a leapfrog pathway laying out a map to harness education innovations to quickly close the gap in education inequality and also help other institutions out of their crisis.

As the pioneer Ag. Vice-Chancellor, I am determined to build on our well-established leading position in the teacher education industry to become a highly-sought university of education within a short time. We are set to make LASUED a world-class research-intensive university of education in the next couple of years. Finally, we are committed to delivering research-led teaching and maintaining a supportive, challenging, and high-quality experience for our students and staff alike.

It is indeed a great time to be part of our world here at the Lagos State University of Education, and I implore you to join us as we move forward to attain greater recognition within the global academic community.

On our web pages, you will find relevant information on various units of the university including our Colleges and Departments, as well as information on our academic programmes. Learn more about admission requirements and scholarship opportunities. Take the next step in your educational journey and find out how a degree from the Lagos State of Education will transform your life.

LASUED: TOKUNBO WAHAB'S HOME RUN

Charged with superintending tertiary institutions in Lagos State, Tokunbo Wahab, the Special Adviser to the Governor on Education, has, at the risk of sounding clichéd, written his name in gold by overseeing the upgrade of the Adeniran Ogunsanya College of Education and the Michael Otedola College of Primary Education to the Lagos State University of Education; and the Lagos State Polytechnic to the Lagos State University of Science and Technology.

With just tenacity of purpose and a terrier devotion to the belief that Lagos State, with its growing youth population, deserved more than just a university – the Lagos State University (LASU) – Tokunbo Wahab, Special Adviser on Education to the Governor, worked round the clock, consulted extensively and networked widely, to ensure that the state's bid to get two more universities accredited by the National Universities Commission, NUC, was achieved.

In a dated interview, he justified why Lagos needed more universities. "It's about changing the landscape backed by available data and doing the needful for the state's residents and Nigerians in general. Mr Babajide Sanwo-Olu's T.H.E.M.E.S Agenda is very clear and explicit. It stands for Traffic Management and Transportation, Health and Environment, Education and Technology, Making Lagos a 21ST Century Economy, Entertainment and Tourism, and Governance and Security. We have education and technology as the pillars."

He continued, "When we came in, in 2019, we checked the key performance indicator (KPI) and the data showed that two of our tertiary institutions – Adeniran Ogunsanya College of Education (AOCOED), Ijanikin, and Michael Otedola College of Primary Education (MOCPE), Epe, were not performing at the optimum. They both had a combined enrolment of just about 5,000 as of December 2021. Yet, they were receiving roughly N5.5 billion annually as subvention.

"We found out that to train an NCE student per year costs about N600, 000. But what is the worth of the NCE certificate itself? We have recruited teachers back to back within the last three years of this administration and I can tell you that our criteria even say you must have a bachelor's of education (B.Ed) and not just NCE."

Wahab said that statistics from the Joint Admissions and Matriculation Board (JAMB) revealed that in 2020, out of 574,782 candidates that applied to sit the Unified Tertiary Matriculation Examination (UTME) from the six states in the South West, Lagos State alone accounted for almost half of the figure at 240,829. "But Lagos State has a single state-owned university while Ondo has three and Ogun, has two. Not until recently when Osun and Oyo states went their separate ways on the Ladoke Akintola University of Technology (LAUTECH), Ogbomoso, the two also had more than one state-owned university. The implication is that our students from Lagos continue to struggle to gain admission to universities because other states usually introduce classification based on indigeneship," he declared.

Conversely, LASU couldn't admit more than 5,000 at a go, yet the applications are very high. According to Wahab, "So, with this number, it is apparent that we have a ticking time bomb at hand which we felt we must address frontally. We also have the issue of discrimination against HND holders and, as a state there is little we could do because addressing such a policy issue lies almost entirely with the federal government. Except you go for conversion, with an HND certificate, you may not move beyond level 15 in the civil service. So, we need to call a spade a spade; NCE, OND, and HND are simply no longer relevant."

Thus, "We had to draft the law, approach the House of Assembly, and thankfully, Mr Governor insisted that we must convince everyone, and I am glad the Rt. Honourable Speaker agreed with us and bought into the vision."

On February 8, the National Universities Commission (NUC), the regulatory body in charge of universities in Nigeria, approved the take-off of two new specialised universities in Lagos State as approved by the state House of Assembly. The universities are the Lagos State University of Education (LASUED) with campuses in Ijanikin and Epe; and the Lagos State University of Science and Technology with campuses in Ikorodu, Isolo, and Surulere. They were established through the upgrade of two existing institutions; the Lagos State Polytechnic, and Adeniran Ogunsanya College of Education, Lagos, respectively.

For Wahab, the approval and eventual take-off of the universities remains a veritable home run, the culmination of many years of hard work, and a fulfilment of one of Governor Sanwo-Olu's cardinal promises to Lagosians. He described the achievement as; "giving democracy dividends to our people. Our people have expressed the need for two additional universities to give our youths more access to varsity education, and they have got it."

Virtually everybody that was interviewed in this publication commended Wahab for his role in ensuring the university came into being. Whilst he was typically modest about his commanding tour de force in the actualisation of the LASUED and LASUSTECH dream, it underscores the widely held belief that Wahab is one of the brightest but self-effacing stars in the Sanwo-Olu administration. Gangling and genial, generous and god-fearing, indeed, everybody seems to love the successful lawyer-turned-public servant for his humility, generosity of spirit, and fierce loyalty to the success of Governor Sanwo-Olu.

It is hard to be more specific about the true worth of his humanity because, unlike most of civilization's great, contemporary statesmen and philanthropists, Wahab has something quite different to offer the state and the several beneficiaries of his generosity. Yet, he is forever quick to counsel folk about his ordinariness while preventing them from dressing him in what he considers spurious cloaks of a 'saviour,' 'messiah,' or 'deity' or 'tin god.'

Beneficiaries of his rare humanness frequently have wonderful stories to share from their encounters with him. However brief or extended the encounter is, Wahab, snatches grief from acquaintances and replaces it with joy. Thus, the joyful stories they all have to share from their encounter with him. Wahab sees a relative in everyone. He believes humanity is one large family divided along race, religious, and other bigoted lines and his response to this defies the depths of human failings and pretensions of altruism. That is why he also believes that giving Governor Sanwo-Olu and his deputy, Dr Obafemi Hamzat, a second term in office will change the face of education in Lagos State forever.

LASUED: LEAPFROGGING FROM A 95-YEAR-OLD HERITAGE TO MAKE A DIFFERENCE IN TEACHER EDUCATION

One year after the National Universities Commission (NUC) approved the establishment of two new universities, one of which is the Lagos State University of Education, the institution (a fusion of the Adeniran Ogunsanya College of Education and the Michael Otedola College of Primary Education) is leapfrogging from a combined heritage of about 95 years altogether to make a difference in the teacher education ecosystem.

By Tayo Williams

The excitement that furrowed the brows of Governor Babajide Sanwo-Olu and his Special Adviser on Education, Barr Tokunbo Wahab, that sunny Tuesday, February 8, 2022 afternoon, summed up their relief and delight that the National Universities Commission (NUC) shares in their hope to enhance, enthrone, and entrench qualitative tertiary education for today and tomorrow's Lagosians and a more virile educational sector that would be the pride of all.

That day, the NUC, the regulatory body in charge of Nigerian universities, approved the take-off of two new specialised universities in Lagos State as approved by the state House of Assembly. The universities are the Lagos State University of Education (LASUED) with campuses in Ijanikin and Epe; and the Lagos State University of Science and Technology with campuses in Ikorodu, Isolo, and Surulere. They were established through the upgrade of two existing institutions; the Lagos State Polytechnic, and Adeniran Ogunsanya College of Education, Lagos, respectively.

The Executive Secretary, of NUC, Prof. Rasheed Abubakar, presented the operational licences for the two universities to the state governor at the NUC Headquarters in Abuja. Prof Abubakar said that the LASUED is now the 56th state university, the 204th university in Nigeria, and the second university of education in the country. He congratulated the governor on his efforts and initiatives; and his team on the vision of moving Lagos State forward, adding, "We particularly congratulate you on your decision to invest wisely in higher education. The Lagos State University of Science and Technology certainly would be a benefit to the position of Lagos as the hub of industries and technology in this country and West Africa. And if properly supported, this is a university that can help Lagos State's determination to transition into a knowledge economy.

"Lagos as a state can move ahead of others based on investment in education. I know that the economy of Lagos alone is the fifth in the entire African continent. The economy of Lagos alone is more than the entire economy of Ghana and Ivory Coast put together."

Prof Abubakar said further that the NUC was convinced to accept the conversion of the existing institutions to universities because the state-owned university had enjoyed a good governance structure and administration over the years with substantial funding and good leadership. The NUC boss stated that the country needed more universities and that when state governors approach the NUC for more universities, it always carries out its due diligence on how the existing ones were funded.

RT. Hon. Speaker, Mudashiru Obasa

do, considering the demands of today's students who are desirous of higher education.

"It is about the future of our citizens. It is about the future of our youths who truly believe in us to do the right thing. It is about our commitment to taking tertiary education to a level that all of us would be proud of. It is all around ensuring that we give hope and opportunity to our teeming youths that believe in us to do the right thing.

Thereafter, Professor Abubakar pledged the commission's total support to the two universities and urged the Lagos State government to take full advantage of the professional and technical advice that it would provide for the operations. He added that the commission had already informed the appropriate educational agencies of government including the Joint Admissions and Matriculation Board (JAMB), Tertiary Education Trust Fund (TETFund), and the National Youth Service Corps (NYSC), among others, about the additional two universities.

On his part, Governor Sanwo-Olu commended the commission for granting the operational certificates, saying that the creation of the two universities by his administration was about doing what is proper for the people. The governor described Prof. Rasheed as someone that he admires for his humility and drive, which he said had also helped him to take the NUC to greater heights.

THE NEED FOR LASUED

Governor Sanwo-Olu explained that converting the old Adeniran Ogunsanya College of Education, AOCOED, and the Michael Otedola College of Primary Education, MOCPED, into a university of education was the proper thing to

"We are giving a commitment that what we have done in LASU, we will also replicate it in the two universities. We will ensure that the two great children that we are giving birth to today are not left alone. All of the various development infrastructure; human and materials that are required to make the universities one of the best in the country, Lagos State would make those resources available for them.

"We say this with every sense of responsibility, knowing full well what we are doing in LASU, the level of infrastructure we are putting into erstwhile polytechnic and colleges of education; we would double up those efforts at ensuring that they can turn into great citadels of higher learning and universities that would be reference points in the years ahead."

He promised that the two universities would not be left alone or be starved of funds as his administration will make resources available to make the institutions the best reference point in the country in the nearest future.

The Road to LASUED

The governor stated that extensive stakeholders' engagement and meetings took place before LASUED came into being while commending the members and Speaker of the Lagos State House of Assembly, Rt. Hon. Mudashiru Obasa, for working with the executive and other stakeholders toward the passage of the law setting up the two universities.

In a statement signed by Wahab, he recalled that Lagos lawmakers had adopted the recommendations of the Committee on Education (Tertiary Institutions) on the Lagos State University of Education Bill 2021. Following the recommendations, the special adviser explained that the Deputy Speaker, Hon. Wasiu Eshinlokun-Sanni, who presided over the plenary in November, thereafter adopted the recommendations of the committee as the resolutions of the House. Wahab also commended Obasa and other lawmakers for their commitment to the growth of education in the state, noting that their experiences and legislative competencies helped to fast-track the process for the establishment of the universities more than expected.

"We cannot thank enough the Hon. Mudashiru Obasa-led House of Assembly for always being on the side of the masses with quality legislation. History will be kind on you and your tenure as the Speaker of the State House of Assembly and the various contributions you have made to the success of a new Lagos of our dream," Wahab stated.

APPOINTMENT OF THE VC

Following the approval, Governor Sanwo-Olu appointed Prof Bilkis Bidemi Lafiaji-Okuneye, a professor of physical education, as the acting vice-chancellor for LASUED but has now ratified her appointment as the substantive vice-chancellor. Professor Okuneye is assisted by Nosiru Onibon, an Associate Professor and former Provost of MOCPED as Acting Deputy Vice-Chancellor. Until her appointment, Prof. Lafiaji-Okuneye was the provost of the AOCOED.

In a statement announcing the appointments, Wahab explained that the appointment of acting vice-chancellors and other management heads pending the appointment of substantive ones became necessary to ensure that there is no vacuum in the leadership of the two institutions while peace and stability are maintained during the transition period.

He added that their appointments were also in compliance with Section 4, Subsection (1) (C) and Section 14 Subsection (1) (A) and (B) of the Lagos State University of Science and Technology Law 2021 and Section 8 Subsection (1) (C) and (D) of the Lagos State University of Education (LASUED) Law, 2021, respectively.

The Head of Service, Hakeem Muri-Okunola, said Lafiaji-Okuneye's new appointment backdated to March 2022 and would run for only five years single tenure. He congratulated her and reaffirmed that the state government expects her to continue to demonstrate a high level of dedication, diligence, and selflessness in the discharge of her duties, noting that is the only way to justify the reason for her elevation.

LASUED AND ITS 95-YEAR-OLD HERITAGE

Two institutions, AOCOED and MOCPED, were fused to become the new university of education. The AOCOED, which was formerly called the Lagos State College of Education, was established in 1958 as a Grade III teacher training college, matriculating about 90 students in its first year. "The College was then affiliated to the then College of Education of the University of Lagos, which assisted in working out the curriculum, screening of teaching staff, and advising of the building of laboratories for the teaching of courses in the sciences. The Institute of Education of the University of Lagos supervised the final year teaching practice, moderated the years' examinations, and awarded certificates to the graduates. The first set of students completed their N.C.E. (Primary) Courses in 1976," the school stated on its website.

It added that in response to the problem of grossly inadequate land space concerning the demands for the development of modern infrastructural facilities and the increasing population of students at its Surulere site, the state government, in 1981, moved the college to the more spacious permanent site at Oto/Ijanikin, Kilometre 30, Lagos-Badagry Expressway. In 1996, the former Military Administrator of Lagos State, Colonel Mohammed Buba Marwa, officially renamed it after the late Otunba Adeniran Ogunsanya, a successful lawyer and politician who died in his prime, for his immense contributions to the provision of quality education in Lagos State.

Conversely, the Michael Otedola College of Primary Education, Noforija, Epe, was established by the state government in December 1994 as Lagos State College of Primary Education (LACOPED), Noforija, Epe. The establishment was pursuant to the then National Policy on Education, which, inter alia, requires the National Certificate in Education (NCE) as the basic (minimum) qualification for teaching in Nigeria by the year 2000. More importantly, there was a need to provide functional and qualitative education predicated upon well-trained and sound professional manpower to Lagosians.

Specifically, the college was to prepare and produce pre-service subject specialists for lower, middle, and upper basic (formerly primary and junior secondary) education levels, which was in contrast to the generalist subject teachers produced by conventional colleges of education.

The College began formal activities on December 1, 1994, at the Government Guest House, Epe, with the appointment of the first Council, Provost, and three other Principal Officers by the Provisional Governing Council. In April 2007, the then Governor Bola Ahmed Tinubu renamed the school the Michael Otedola College of Primary Education (MOCPED) in honour of a former governor of the state, Sir Michael Agbolade Otedola, under whose administration the institution was established.

The governor's performance on education matters is excellent. I applaud his capacity, his actions, and his investments in the growth of education in Lagos. The results are very clear and encouraging.

Why LASUED Will Be Different from Other Universities of Education

Prof. Bidemi Bilkis Lafiaji-Okuneye
Vice-Chancellor

he confidence is infectious. But the task at hand is intimidating. Running a new university, warts and all, will not be a tea party.

Professor Bilkis Bidemi Lafajji-Okuneye, the pioneer Vice Chancellor of the Lagos State University of Education (LASUED) is acutely aware of this. She declares that the onerous task of mid-wifing the institution from gestation to eventual birth, and as it learns to take tottering, tentative steps like an infant, has been challenging but interesting and illuminating.

Her academic and professional bona fides underscore that she comes well-acquitted for the job. Also, with the steadfast support of the Lagos State government, she asserts that the institution will live up to the founding fathers' vision and evolve into a peerless teacher institute. She also promises that LASUED will be different from other universities of education.

It is hard, almost inconceivable, not to believe the Vice-Chancellor. She chooses her words carefully and delivers them with clinical conviction and a rare immersive candour. As we navigated through her chequered trajectory and the task before her one Wednesday morning in January in her office on the LASUED campus in Ijanikin, she avers that she breaks glass ceilings without making an extra effort. "It is providence," she quips and delves into how Governor Babajide Sanwo-Olu appointed her as the Provost of the Adeniran Ogunsanya College of Education, one of the legacy colleges that became LASUED. That was in January 2020.

Two years later, she was appointed the Acting Vice Chancellor of the new LASUED. On February 2, 2023, incidentally, her 51st birthday, her appointment as the substantive vice chancellor was ratified, which she describes as a surprise birthday gift from Mr Governor.

A star athlete in her younger days, young Bilkis' sole dream was to read Mass Communication and become a newscaster because of her love and proficiency in the English Language. It was the same providence, she admits, that, however, led her to the Lagos State University where she bagged a Diploma and Bachelor of Science degree in Physical and Health Education. She obtained a Master in Education (Health Education) at the University of Lagos in 1999 and consummated her educational odyssey with a Doctor of Philosophy at the University of Ibadan.

Her teaching career began at Awori College in 1996. A year later, she joined LASU as a lecturer in the Faculty of Education. Teaching, she says, is a form of Mass Communication because of the direct impartation of knowledge and instant feedback from students. Thus, she tells anyone within earshot that she did not deviate from her childhood dreams. Dreams do come true and for the astute Lagos Island-born academic, she is now up there where the air is thin while she aims to reach beyond the skies in her mission to make LASUED a world-class research-intensive university of education.

By Adeshina Oyetayo

Congratulations on the birth of LASUED and, of course, your appointment as the pioneer Vice-Chancellor. How would you describe the journey in the last one year?

The journey has been interesting, I won't say tough. Because interesting is neither here nor there. It's been challenging in the sense that the transmutation process is not a very smooth one, having to change the mindset of people from what they were used to; they were in the college of education. There are different regulatory bodies in charge of the colleges of college is not wound up yet; they are gradually winding down. There are still students in the legacy colleges and until the last students graduate, the colleges remain.

(Cuts in)...When would that be?

Next year, by the grace of God. By then, one can fully say, I have removed the toga of a provost. But for now, I perform the two roles. So, as I was saying, it's been tedious and sometimes you make mistakes, maybe you are supposed to send a mail but you send it in another direction.

Overall, it's been interesting.

Looking back at your career as an academic, did you ever fancy yourself steering the ship of a new university?

I never thought about it! In fact, if you hear the story of how I became a provost, you will marvel because I didn't put my mind to it. I was approached by some friends who said I should apply and they kept the pressure up so I had to just submit my application on the deadline day.

education and universities. So, having to shift from one to the other is a very big challenge. Having to re-designate staff is also a big challenge but we have been coping well and we thank God that we are where we are now.

How seamless or otherwise was it for you particularly to make that transition from Provost to VC?

Okay. I would not say that the roles are demarcated because I still perform the duties of a provost. Don't forget, the

Eventually, we went for the interview, and 'like play, like play', the thing was becoming real. At the end of the day, three names were shortlisted and I was among them. Eventually, the announcement was made. So, when people ask me, I just say it is the work of God. I never made any extraordinary effort to get here. At the time I was appointed a Provost, I had barely spent four months as the head of my department. So, it was to me the handiwork of God because I did not plan for it. It was simply providential. But getting there, I had to live up to expectations.

One would think that beyond the salary and prestige, there is not much difference between being a provost and a vice-chancellor. Is there anything else?

Well, just that! Nothing different because both of you are heads of institutions. The institutions may be different but the duties are the same.

The institution started with 67 programmes. What efforts are being made to increase the number?

We may not have to increase the programme because what we have already was exhaustively put together. If we have to put up new programmes, it means we have to develop them according to the needs of society. In the future, we will develop new programmes but we are also mindful not to put so much pressure on the system. This is a business of education and it is a business of quality. It's not about money-making. So, for anything we want to do, quality must be assured. Also, we plan to have Tourism and Hospitality Management; and some PR programmes because that's the in-thing. We also plan to offer courses in Information Technology, and Artificial Intelligence, which also is popular now, but we will take it one step at a time. We are not rushing into anything.

Are all your programmes accredited?

What they call it at the level of the NUC (Nigerian Universities Commission) is verification. If you are starting new, the programmes are verified and you can take off. But after two or three years, they are coming back for proper accreditation. So, for now, all our programmes are verified. We presented 67 programmes, but 66 were approved. For the 67th (Civic Education), it was not by our making that it was not verified, the NUC does not have BMAS (Benchmark Minimum Academic Standard) for it yet. You have to align with the BMAS. So, we couldn't start that. But if you asked me, I'd say we got 100%.

You said that LASUED is not a money-making institution. The management of the institution proposed a certain figure as school fees but the Lagos State Government reduced it to N68, 000. How does the school intend to stay afloat?

Thank you very much. Yes, we had to prepare that Schedule of Fee realistically. We prepared the first bill in a way to suggest that if you are coming to be trained by the university, you must pay for it after all, Nursery, Primary, and Secondary school students pay well for school fees. At the level of a tertiary institution, will it not be okay to pay well too even though at a subsidised rate? So,

“For now, all our programmes are verified. We presented 67 programmes, but 66 were approved. For the 67th (Civic Education), it was not by our making that it was not verified, the NUC does not have BMAS (Benchmark Minimum Academic Standard) for it yet.”

we must be realistic that education is not cheap. The state government subvents us, at least in terms of personnel and other things. Lagos is the only state that does not owe salaries. We are paid promptly. So, the management felt that instead of going to the government every time, let's be a little solvent so that we can pay basic bills. But the governor, in his magnanimity, said no; that the government will still be responsible for some of our needs and that occasioned the reduction to N68, 000. He also assured us that all is well. Again, the reality the governor pointed out was that some of these students still come back to some of us as parents, which was why he said we should be moderate considering again that the institution is new.

One year down the line, what will you say is the major challenge besetting the institution?

One of the major challenges is the mindset of the staff. The college of education is different from a university and there is this mindset that everything is done the same way, but it is not. That is why you cannot find a professor in a college of education. The peak of their career is Chief Lecturer. They have their career structure that differs from that of a university. So, coming here and having to re-designate was a challenge. After the transmutation, we had to re-designate to properly align with what obtains in the university. The university culture is universal. Fine, the academic officials were okay with it because they will eventually become professors but the

“We are a teacher institute and the ultimate is to train a teacher...We want to be known for our professionalism. LASUED is not a conventional university. So, beyond being a world-class university, we aim to be a world-class professional university; professional in the business of teaching.”

non-teaching staff were obstinate. They felt that they were being demoted. They didn't see the larger picture. I understand because it is psychological. So, we have to counsel and keep talking about it and some of them are already changing their mindsets but it took time for us to get to where we are now. So, the mindset was the major challenge we were confronted with. Apart from that, I will say infrastructure. We are lucky here because as the students are moving out, we are replacing them. By the time they get to 300 level, we may have to up our game in terms of the provision of a laboratory and more infrastructure. Now, we have a quota of 3, 300. In the coming year, our quota may increase. It's because we are starting new that's why the NUC said we can't take more than that. It is 50 per programme (making 3,300). Going forward, we will have more students, which means the existing infrastructure will not be able to accommodate them. But we are lucky because the state government is already putting up the new infrastructure here. We have a 750-seater being constructed. There is the TETFUND-sponsored lecture theatre also under construction. I hope that by next session, we will meet the challenges as they come.

Aside from the two you just mentioned, what major projects are ongoing here?

We have the sports centre, the admin block, and a 300-seater lecture theatre by TETFUND. Those are the major ones for now. Going forward, the state government has assured us that if they finish one, and there is a need for another, they will do it to meet the school's needs.

Specifically, what are you doing to achieve your target of making LASUED a world-class research-intensive university of education?

The university's business is teaching, research, and community service. For the teaching aspect, we have in place various strategies to ensure that we have quality. We are a teacher institute and the ultimate is to train a teacher. So, because we are a teacher institute, we want to be known for our professionalism. LASUED is not a conventional university. So, beyond being a world-class university, we aim to be a world-class professional university; professional in the business of teaching. What you have mentioned is achievable, which is why I have this slogan for the university called ACHIEVE. A is for academic culture and excellence. C is community relations. H is for human capacity (students and staff welfare). You cannot build human capacity on nothingness and building on something is the welfare aspect of it. I is for infrastructural development. E is for entrepreneurship. We want to be known for teaching our students soft skills. It is not just the certificate that matters here. The certificate can be the basis upon which you will build entrepreneurial skills. We have a directorate of entrepreneurship and we are getting collaboration internationally to ensure that our students gain maximally from entrepreneurship education. The V aspect is valuable research. We are going to ensure that we have valuable, grant-winning research that we can boldly and confidently come out to say we did this research. With time, we will organise a research fair so that we will create a competitive environment for our lecturers. We grade them and announce winners. Other lecturers will be motivated to go the extra mile in hope that they would be lucky the next time. The last one is E, which stands for excellent professionalism in terms of our students' output. When you see our students, their dress sense and behaviour must reflect that they are professional teachers and can be role models. This also applies to our staff. That's the seven-point agenda of the university – 'Together, we shall achieve.'

Teaching is not a glamorous job in this part of the world and there is a dearth of quality teachers in the system. You are in the business of training teachers. What are you doing differently to attract and produce more teachers?

Let me relate a scenario to you. When I became the provost, I had cause to visit the chairman of TESCOM (Teaching Service Commission) and she told us pointedly that she is not happy with the standard of teachers being trained but that if she is going through a list of applicants and sees Adeniran Ogunsanya College of Education, she immediately shortlists because she believes they are good products and that she had seen a lot. Even education graduates of universities cannot match those with NCE from us. I was happy about that. I met that standard and it has been sustained. The tradition remains even if we have moved from a college to a university. We will up our game so that we don't lower the standard set by the legacy college. We hope to surpass those in the business of education at the university level. Again, what we have done is ensure entrepreneurship education is attached vigorously to any course being studied. Here, we teach soft skills. What we are also doing is move out of the norm by doing our teaching practice for a whole semester instead of the conventional six weeks. That implies that you will be properly integrated into teaching because the practice is now for three months. The second thing is that our students will be certificated by the Teachers Registration Council of Nigeria (TRCN). We encourage our students to take the exam before they graduate. This is apart from their degree certificates. An average graduate gets three certificates – the TRCN, the certificate of their course, and entrepreneurship, which is a compulsory course. All these make us different. So, when they go into the labour market, they are well-equipped to be dynamic. They are not entirely reliant on just white-collar jobs. We have teachers who are paid N10,000 or N15,000 but you (our graduate) will choose what you want. Any teacher who knows their onion will not take such a paltry pay when they can harness the soft skills you have acquired here. These will make us distinctly different from others.

Do you envision a time when LASUED will not be overly reliant on the state government?

Well, yes. But that may not be in the immediate.

So, how do you hope to shore up your revenue base?

This is the business of academics.

Personally, I do not believe in schools making bread, water, or all such. For me, it is a distraction. A lot of my staff had approached me to let us go into one venture or the other but I don't believe in it. What I believe in is academic. If we have to shore up our revenue then, let us go academic by doing different certificate courses. You can then use the certificate courses to feed the degree programmes. Anyone who finishes the certificate programmes can go on to a diploma and then to a degree. That's what I believe in.

How do you maintain peace and stability with your host community?

I met a very solid relationship between the school and the community. What I have done is improve on what I met. There's nothing that happens even across the road, that I will not be immediately called because of the relationship and because I operate an open-door policy. I relate with the Kabiyesi very well. The Oloto gave us a 200-seater capacity hall. This says a lot about our relationship. We also encourage the communities to report any erring student and when we get such, we do what we are supposed to do. So the community has confidence in us.

When you are not working or writing your academic papers, what do you do in your spare time?

I cook. (General laughter) I like to cook. I like to read. I read newspapers and novels a lot. And I like to travel. I like to see things. I like adventures. But cooking is number one for me and I can experiment with anything while cooking.

Did you set out to become an academic?

Wow! That's a big question. I didn't.

Growing up, I wanted to be a newscaster because I loved the English language when I was in school. I had an A3 in English. With that, I thought that I would go read Mass Communication at the university. I didn't get to read it, but teaching also is mass communication. I found myself in Physical and

Health Education because I was a very active athlete in secondary school. I play handball very well. I was a national player. I travelled to Europe to represent Nigeria. I started travelling to play handball when I was in Class One. A coach just came to my school, introduced the game to us, and I started. In that Class One at the age of 12, I travelled to Sweden and that was how it started. I didn't know that God was preparing me for that course. I was just enjoying the game. When I didn't get admission into the Ogun State Polytechnic then, my coach who knew I was desirous of furthering my studies, informed me about a diploma PHE form in LASU. So, I went and before you knew it, I began to enjoy the course. At the end of the two-year programme, I had the second-best result and we were taken immediately into the main degree. I was still doing my sports. At the end of the degree, I was top of my class and I was retained as a graduate assistant in 1997. That was it. I didn't plan to be a lecturer. In 2017, I became a professor. I am a child of circumstance. I don't go after becoming anything, it just happens. Three years ago when I was a provost, I didn't know I would be a vice-chancellor.

So, what do you do differently? Is it that you pray more or work harder than the other person?

No, I am just lucky. I am not doing anything differently. I am not a prayer warrior neither do I work harder than a normal person but I do my work diligently. I am a perfectionist.

How do you ensure that your lecturers stay motivated?

We encourage them to attend conferences and we sponsor them. We organise workshops and training for them, especially in grants-winning research. We had two last year and we are planning another one already. So, it's not about money, it is about enriching them and then ensuring that they are self-motivated.

What would your advice be to an undergraduate who wants to be an academic?

They should study hard, be diligent, and be focused. Here, we will encourage first-class graduates to be a part of us though that is the tradition. We will have an establishment position for such and encourage them to excel. We also will be collaborating with companies, which we call the industry and the academia. If we have old students who are doing well, we can introduce our new graduates to them. We are going to, as much as possible, get employment for them.

LASUED Would be a Reference Point for Other Universities of Education

Alhaja Sekinat Olushola Yusuf is the pioneer Pro-Chancellor and Chairman of the Governing Council of the Lagos State University of Education. Hitherto, she was the chairman of the council of the erstwhile Michael Otedola College of Primary Education, Noforija, Epe; one of the two colleges of education upgraded to LASUED. The amiable Amazon was once the Honourable Commissioner for Education in Lagos State. In both offices, she chalked up several laudable achievements. In an exclusive interview with AMOS OLADELE, she reflects on the journey to the birth of LASUED; the pivotal roles that her office is playing; and how she sees the institution, both now and in the future.

How did you receive the news of the establishment of LASUED when it first broke?

I think it was on February 22, 2022, that we were asked to come and sign the document in the governor's office. It was a very thrilling development. One, it meant an increase in the number of universities in the state. Secondly, ours was meant to be a specialised university – a university of education. So, I am very happy that it was established.

To what extent were you involved in the race to get the university established?

I was the chairman of the council of the erstwhile Michael Otedola College of Primary Education. The truth is that today, people are not interested in NCE programmes. We, thus, realised that we needed to give the people what they need to make them productive, which is a university of education. We, therefore, told the government that it would be better if the (then) colleges of education could graduate into a university, which was in line with the thinking of the government, ab initio. As such, we were involved from the outset.

How does being the pioneer Pro-Chancellor of the institution make you feel; and what did you promise yourself to help the institution achieve during your tenure?

Of course, I feel very happy, and I thank God very much for it. I promised myself that I would do my best to ensure that the institution is well established. This is because we must get it right and give it a very good foundation – in terms of the quality of human and material resources; and the quality of students that we admit into the institution so that we would make a difference. We must carve a niche for ourselves; the university must be known for something such that people will not see it as just a teacher training institution; but as a human development and specialised institution; so that people can come in and specialise in their chosen field with their education background.

We'd like you to reminisce on your days as the Commissioner for Education in Lagos State. What are some notable achievements that you recorded while in office?

I recall vividly that in conjunction with the Ministry of Health, we established the Lagos State University College of Medicine, LASUCOM at the general hospital, Ikeja; it was a joint effort with the Lagos State University. Also, we established model colleges across all the geo-political zones or divisions of the state. We brought in a lot of teachers and increased their remuneration. We also encouraged our qualified students to go for medicine because there was a shortage of medical personnel. We did it such that any enrolled medical student got some stipend, and there was a job guarantee when they finished medical school. Again, we improved the schools; we wanted to comply with the standard given by the United Nations then. We built more schools all over the state and our teachers were well-remunerated.

Despite those fantastic achievements, is there anything you would have done differently if you were to occupy that position today?

Because things are quite different now; one would have gone with the current trends. Most things are now done through the internet. It's been 22 years; perhaps one would have focused more on the internet and technology both for the students and the teachers. Maybe one would have focused more on ensuring that students are encouraged and allowed to do what they are gifted in, instead of saying you must do this, you must do that. You'd remember that there were schools for gifted children and children with special needs at that time; I don't know if any such schools exist now. All our schools would have been computerised and digitalised; there would be digital boards in every class; I don't know if that is already done or is being done as we speak. But, most importantly, I would have focused on technology across board.

LASUED has been on for one year now. How has it been with you in your office as Pro-Chancellor?

It's been interesting! It is true, though, that when you're starting something from the base, there'll be some challenges here and there. But, being the pioneer Pro-Chancellor and growing with the university, I feel highly honoured; I am enjoying it. It's like building a house; as you see the house rising, you'll be very happy. For instance, this year, we have admitted over 3,000 students, which is a good record. I feel happy and proud; and I am always ready to give all I can to make sure that very soon, the university becomes what it should be by the grace of God.

Would you mind sharing with us some of the challenges you've had to grapple with; and how you've been surmounting them?

Because LASUED is a merger of two erstwhile colleges of education; that itself would naturally pose some challenges. Having to convert our teachers from colleges of education to a university would also witness some resentment here and there. Then, the infrastructure. But, I would say a very big thank you to the state government. It's been fantastic. We got all the support we needed from the state government, which is why we've been able to do most of what we've done. They went out of their way to make sure that we got all we needed to establish the university.

Is the council under your leadership, with the management looking in the direction of fashioning strategies to shore up the revenue base of the institution?

Yes, we are all ready for that!

Definitely, we'd have to do that. It's just that we're just settling down. We just had our students in; now, we can start focusing on other things like entrepreneurship. We don't want our students to merely be the usual education students, an education-as-usual kind of people. We'd focus on what they can do to be very buoyant, to be employers of labour instead of employees. The campus is in a coconut-growing area; what can they do with coconuts and other resources from there? We can look at establishing a relevant industry in the area and anyone that conceives any viable idea that can lead to income generation would be welcome by the university.

What advice do you have for the newly-matriculated pioneer students?

As pioneer students, they should be above board; they'd be our first set of ambassadors and the first to project the university to the world. We were very careful in selecting our students because we wanted the best. So, we expect the best from them. Let them focus on their studies; let them think of good ideas that they can bring to the university. We are ready to work with them to get the best out of them.

In 10 years, where would you expect LASUED to be?

By then, LASUED would be the best institution for education, not just in Nigeria but in the African sub-region; it would be a reference point for other universities of education.

“When you're starting something from the base, there'll be some challenges here and there. But, being the pioneer Pro-Chancellor and growing with the university, I feel highly honoured; I am enjoying it. It's like building a house; as you see the house rising, you'll be very happy.”

LASUED PRODUCTS WILL BE HOTLY EMPLOYABLE

Dr. Nosiru Olajide Onibon
Ag. Deputy VC

As an integral member of the pioneering Management Team steering the ship of the Lagos State University of Education in the last year, Dr. Nosiru Olajide Onibon, an Associate Professor of Arabic Language and Acting Deputy Vice-Chancellor goes down memory lane on the challenging but exciting trajectory of the institution. Hitherto the substantive Provost of the erstwhile Michael Otedola College of Primary Education, Noforija, Epe, Prof Onibon reckons that the young and promising institution will churn out 'hotly employable' graduates in four years.

By Olawunmi Abiona and Jerry Joshua

Did the upgrade of the college to a university come to you as a surprise?

It did not come as a surprise because we had been on it for a while. The Ijanikin axis - the Adeniran Ogunsanya College of Education - had been on it for long. Our college also had been on it before I came in as a provost. So, it was like a hope that came to reality in the time of our resourceful governor (Babajide Sanwo-Olu). He has successfully transmuted the erstwhile colleges into a university. The surprise in all of these was that as an Associate Professor, I thought that only a full professor would occupy this office. However, thanks to the magnanimity of Mr. Governor and the Special Adviser to the Governor on Education, SAE, (Tokunbo Wahab), they found me qualified to act as a Deputy Vice-Chancellor. I took up the opportunity with gratitude and gladness. I had to harness all my efforts and intellectual resources to meet up with the demands of the office and to justify the confidence reposed in me. I am thankful to God that I have not disappointed Mr. Governor and the Special Adviser on Education.

How has the experience been in the last year?

It has been very interesting and challenging at the same time. I was a Provost at the college level, but this is a university. The operation is like a step up for me. So, I have had to step up everything in terms of the physical, intellectual, and moral competencies needed to perform as deputy vice-chancellor. So it is challenging, and I thank God that we now have our first batch of students on campus.

Please, tell us how the journey has been as an academic and an administrator.

The journey has been smooth because Mr. Governor, through the SAE (Special Adviser on Education), and the Governing Council, has been very cooperative. They listen to us and provide us with the necessary resources to forge ahead. We have been working together as a team with the other members of the management. It is challenging, but we have been weathering the storm to get to where we are in terms of administration. The steps to transmute from a college to a university are not easy, especially because, as of today, we have no rules and regulations guiding such a transition in the whole of Nigeria! The first college that did that was Tai Solarin College of Education, Ijebu-Ode, and we had to borrow a leaf from them as we moved on. We learnt from some of the things they have done. We ran away from where they had storms in their take-off. In terms of transiting administratively, we are not starting from ground zero; we are moving lecturers, administrative, and non-teaching staff (junior and senior) from the college level to the university. Interestingly, we have enjoyed the cooperation of everyone, that is, the management and the staff, both academic and non-teaching. Even in the areas where they feel things are not properly done, we explain, and they have been showing cooperation and understanding. That is what has helped us to be able to get to where we are within this short length of time. The foundational documents have also been developed. The conditions of service, the career structures, and the student handbook have all been developed by our team. Today, I can proudly say that these documents can stand the test of time and compete with all such documents holding sway in other universities.

What does your role as Deputy Vice-Chancellor entail?

My role entails working with the Vice Chancellor on any assigned task. In her absence, I take charge. Also, I have to operate on statutory assignments like being the chairman of the Admissions Committee; and chairman of the Academic Committee that looks into academic briefs of different programs. We have to standardise them. All of that is under my office. The VC also assigned me to chair some important committees set up to develop the foundational documents, which we have done and have gotten the approval of the Governing Council.

What has been the most challenging part of your job?

So far, the most challenging is what we call the right placement. When you are moving people from college to university, ordinarily, if I were to be in their shoes, I would want to be seen to be moved parallel. If I'm a senior lecturer in the college, I want to be seen as a senior lecturer in the university. If I'm a Deputy Registrar in the college, I also want to be seen as a Deputy Registrar in the university. But as we moved, we discovered that it is not that simple.

As should be expected, that caused a kind of discrepancy here and there, but I assure you that we are getting that settled. The staff has been very civil in seeking redress to all those things, appealing, and putting it into writing; every complaint is being looked into on its merit.

The vision of the management and founders is to make LASUED a world-class, research-intensive university of education; what is the minimum time set to achieve this?

The minimum time we have given ourselves to achieve that is when we turn out the first set of graduates. In four years, we should send out the first set of our students; the quality of what we turn out will speak volumes for achieving that vision here. In addition, we hope that our teaching and learning environment is better transformed than what you see now.

Do you foresee any challenges derailing this?

For now, not at all.

How do you keep the workforce here motivated?

What we do, first, is to take care of their welfare which starts from regular payment of their salaries, gross salaries, this time around. When I say gross salaries, I mean including deductions to pension administrators, their cooperatives, and tax administrative organs; these are all that make up their gross salaries. So, the regular payment of that is paramount to us. At the college level, we had been doing that consistently. Remittances are done regularly, and we are not owing anybody a dime. The second thing is the working environment. The ecology of the workplace also matters a lot to us. We want to make you comfortable each time you come to the office so that you can discharge your duties very efficiently, and what that entails is providing chairs and tables that are comfortable among other things. If you move around, you can see that we have changed the seats and tables of more than 70% of the staff since I came on board as the provost, and we are not stopping yet. Not only that, but we are also putting other office equipment in place; trying to make sure that we provide light at least four working hours every day whether there is power supply or not, and you know what that will cost. So, we have to earmark money to buy diesel now and then. We go to that extent, mindful of the fact that if you come to the office and there is no light, it will not be conducive, and all your delivery that is electricity-based will be hampered. We have also gone to purchase rechargeable fans. If after four hours, that is 10 am to 2 pm, there is still no power supply; you can have the fans. We are also not looking back on the annual bonus for our staff; we give it at the end of the year, no matter how small it is. It may be considered small because of our size, but we still give it. Perhaps when we get the full complement of a university, we may be able to do more. We are committed to doing that.

Again, training is not left behind; we send our staff on local and international training, conferences, and staff development. God being so good, we have the TetFund Intervention now. We access their intervention in conferences for our staff to enjoy. We also do have a line of intervention for our staff development. For any staff that wants to go for Master's degrees, Ph.D., and all that, we are also accessing it for them. Just two or three months ago, I signed for seven of them that just got TetFund intervention to study at the Master's or Ph.D. levels. There is also a line of intervention for research. That is to encourage them. Their health is also paramount to us. We intervene when any staff writes us about a health challenge; we ask our medical outfit to advise the management and if they need financial intervention, we give them. Even if you have gone home from the hospital and we are notified, we ask our medical team to visit you and advise us on what next to do. If you need money, we give, no matter how little. We are also looking at a health insurance scheme for our staff.

In terms of teacher education, what will LASUED do differently?

“We will ensure that when our products come out, they will be hotly employable. Not only employable; they will also be employers of labour. We are also training them to be independent and problem solvers, not to be part of the problems of our society.”

What we are going to do differently comes in terms of the quality of what we give. Before, the NUC (National Universities Commission) had what it called Basic Minimum Academic Standard (BMAS), which is now CC-MAS (Core Curriculum Minimum Academic Standards). What CC-MAS entails is you have only 70% of the curriculum content given by the NUC while the remaining 30 percent will be local content of what you want to be known for as an institution. That means you cut a niche for yourself, and that is where our university is coming in.

We are researching what our immediate environment needs, and we are infusing that into our curriculum to make up the 30% window of CC-MAS.

What we are going to do differently?

We will ensure that when our products come out, they will be hotly employable. Not only employable; they will also be employers of labour. We are also training them to be independent and problem solvers, not to be part of the problems of our society. We are infusing all of this into our curriculum, which is why if you see our curriculum, all the students that will pass through us will go to one trade training or the other; we are into entrepreneurship too. If you study English, for instance, how you use your English certificate to provide jobs for others matters to us.

How has the relationship between the institution, even in its former state, been like with the community; and what are you doing to ensure that peace is sustained?

We have been maintaining a peaceful relationship with our host communities. The host community is very important to us and we are sustaining it to the extent that when they have festivals, we come together. I have spent five years here, and there has never been any clash between the students and the host communities. It has been very cordial, and we are sustaining that. I want to use this opportunity to thank the Kabiyesis, the Baales, and the Oloyes around that always intervene if there is any clash. Even before the management is invited, they would have resolved it. It's only the ones they cannot handle that management gets to know about. One of the things we also try to do is to look at what the immediate community needs us to help with, which is where the term Town and Gown comes from. We are the Gown and the community is the Town. It is about the Gown recognizing the Town and the Town recognizing the Gown. There is this handshake that we are having across the divide.

What will be your sincerest advice to an undergraduate interested in being an Academic?

A simple one is what it entails; you need a Master's degree; you don't stop at the first degree. You need your Master's and you need your Ph.D. Then you can walk to us and say you want to lecture. You also need to prepare from the beginning. You need to come out with first class or second class upper. For the university, we don't take a second class lower for academic staff. My sincere advice to whoever wants to be an academic staff, therefore, is for them to start well. Be focused; have your first degree, second degree, and Ph.D. Then you can walk up to us, and you will be absorbed. Consistency also matters; if you have your first degree in English, your second and third degrees must also be in English because you have to be grounded in your area of specialization as an academic.

How will you rate the administration of Governor Sanwo-Olu in education, which is a major plank in his T.H.E.M.E.S Agenda?

Mr. Governor is doing a yeoman's job in that area. This is because he is passionate about the quality of what we impart to the young ones. The students are our hopes and dreams, and what they become tomorrow depends on what we dole out to them today. The governor also believes in the fact that the quality of what you give in terms of education to our students at various levels also determines the quality of the crew of the state and humanity as a whole because this is an industry, a factory whose products are human beings and not tins of milk which after using you through away. It is human beings that are going to shape the larger society. So, Governor Sanwo-Olu's administration is giving education its pride of place in the T.H.E.M.E.S Agenda. If you check it from the primary level, you'd see that many teachers were employed in recent years; ditto at the secondary school level. At the tertiary level today, we have three universities: Lagos State University, Lagos State University of Science and Technology; and the Lagos State University of Education. This is a fantastic achievement in the area of education. So, I give kudos to Mr. Governor. I don't think there is any governor that has achieved that in the country for now, especially getting approval for two universities at the same time and on the same date.

What would you advise the state government to do to make LASUED compare and compete favourably with other universities of education globally?

I appeal to Mr. Governor, the Special Adviser on Education, and the other relevant office holders that they intervene more and listen and attend to our requests because we are on the seat here; and this is our business. It is easier for us to compare notes so when we go out there to other universities whether locally or internationally, we look at their physical environment, even if we don't take pictures. The pictures taken by our eyeballs are in our minds. We always want to replicate such good examples here. We will always request from the government. I appeal to the government that they should not leave this child to take care of itself.

Personally, where do you see LASUED in the next 10 years?

In 10 years, I know I will not be in this seat; but I want to see a LASUED that is known for quality; a LASUED that can compete with any university in the world in terms of teaching, learning, and community development.

When your job is done here, what will you like to be remembered for?

I want to be remembered for being a team player that carried everybody along – the management team, the student population, and other stakeholders. I have spent five years here and I have not had one single crisis with the students or staff. No rift whatsoever! We program ourselves. In the past five years, we have been following our academic calendar religiously with no interruptions. At the beginning of the session, we will publish it, and the students will have it. If they have complaints, they come around, and we sit down together and adjust it. After all, we are not robots; so, we come together, look into it, and make adjustments where and when necessary. They have always been civil about it. So I want to be remembered as a good team player.

My sincere advice to whoever wants to be an academic staff, therefore, is for them to start well. Be focused; have your first degree, second degree, and Ph.D. Then you can walk up to us, and you will be absorbed.

LASUED

IS DISTINGUISHED BY ITS

UNIQUE WAY OF DOING THINGS

Mr. Akinfemiwa Opeoluwa is the Registrar/Secretary, Governing Council of the Lagos State University of Education. A History and Archeology graduate of the University of Ibadan, Akinfemiwa bagged his Master's Degree in Public Administration from the Lagos State University, Ojo. He began his career as Administrative Officer II in October 1990 at LASU. He served in various administrative roles in LASU where he left his imprint of enterprise, innovation, and insight.

Akinfemiwa transferred his services to the Adekunle Ajasin University, Akungba Akoko, Ondo State, where he was appointed a Deputy Registrar (Academic Affairs). He rose to become acting Registrar before returning to Lagos in 2021. In an exclusive chat with OLAWUNMI ABIONA, he reviews the roles of his office as the custodian of the institution's rules and regulations; the relationship between his office and other internal and external stakeholders; the strong foundations laid for the institution; the teething challenges; and how they're getting surmounted.

How prepared will you say you are for the job of a registrar in a new university as LASUED?

I can say that by the grace of God, I am very prepared because the foundation matters. Of course, in a new university like this, there will be challenges, and once you don't get it right straight away, getting back on track will be quite difficult. By His Grace, I am fully prepared. I must confess, however, that I wasn't expecting the appointment; but I was fully prepared.

What will you say are some of the most important qualities that a university Registrar must have?

A university registrar must be disciplined and very committed. He must be versatile and conversant with happenings in other universities and have a good understanding of the rules and regulations of his university and others. The registrar must have a good understanding of standard practices in other places.

Did the appointment come to you as a surprise? And what did you set out to achieve in this office?

It came to me as a surprise, actually; and immediately I got it, being a new university, my thoughts, and efforts centred on how I would join the Vice Chancellor to lay a solid foundation for the university in terms of operations, rules and regulations, the admission of students, and the operation of the committee system. Those things have been my major focus.

What processes do you have in place to authenticate a student's identity and credentials?

The process we have in place is that students are supposed to upload their results online, after which we check them up; then, they will come for the physical registration. After uploading their passports and credentials, they will come after two to three weeks for physical verification. When it comes to physical verification, you must match what you have online with the hard copies – the pictures and everything. Recently, the management tried to put a system in place to ensure that students' results are cross-checked and authenticated by the examination bodies because you mustn't admit a student and tell him three years after that sorry, what you presented was not authentic. This, you would agree, would naturally lead to confusion. Therefore, the management is doing everything to get this right.

Can you share with us a critical period when your experience over the years came into play in solving a major problem?

When we were trying to commence our committee system, at that point, we had some committees in our enabling law; we have some in the academic brief; there were some critical committees that we did not like, but we needed them. The questions then became what and how do we go about it; and how do we defend it? What we now did was to look at operatives inside the university and by that, we were able to cross that hurdle. Another challenge was as a new university and being appointed the registrar, I needed to assign duties and create units/divisions within the registry. Mind you, there was no structure on the ground at all. So, at that point, I had to use my experience because this is not the first place where I would serve as a registrar. I had been a registrar for two years at Adekunle Ajasin

University in Ondo State. There, by the grace of God, I was able to create a structure for the registry. Ditto the various divisions; because without those divisions, you cannot operate.

Now, talking about personnel, in a situation where you inherit 2000 staff from the two erstwhile colleges, how you manage their records; how you deal with all of them matters. You also need to create necessary discussions where you have about 3,000 students admitted. How do you manage their records, etc? We just concluded the orientation programme and I had to write some letters to Students Affairs Officers, Deans, etc. They all had to join hands with me. These were some of the challenges. Thank God that we were able to overcome all of them. The matriculation comes up next week (the week after this interview). We need to train officers such that functions like the distribution of gowns, etc, will be done seamlessly.

What do you think sets LASUED apart from other institutions of its kind?

It's a university of education, and it's solely for a unique way of doing things.

What is your philosophy on communication between the registrar's office and the rest of the school?

Let me start with the Office of the Vice Chancellor; as you can see, my office is very close to hers. With every sense of humility, I'd like to submit that the registrar's office is like a hub that drives the entire university. Aside from finance, there is no how you will have any major official matter to do with all other officers of the institution without recourse (directly or indirectly) to this office. I and the VC can see a minimum of seven times a day. The registrar is the custodian of rules and regulations. He has to advise other departments in the university in line with regulations. For instance, we have college officers who are mini registrars; they cover meetings and give reports to the registrar. So, we have a communication flow between the registrar's office and the colleges, the principal officers, all internal and external publics of the institution, and its strategic stakeholders without exception.

A university registrar must be disciplined and very committed. He must be versatile and conversant with happenings in other universities and have a good understanding of the rules and regulations of his university and others. The registrar must have a good understanding of standard practices in other places.

What do you think the administration can do to make LASUED bigger and better?

One major way is adequate record keeping. One germane function of the registrar is that he is in charge of students and staff records. He has to have adequate information at all times and in all circumstances. This will assist the students and the staff. If, for instance, you want to compile a student's results and have already adequately kept all information regarding him and his academic records, it becomes easier for both parties. Students would have easier access to their records.

Secondly, a registrar must ensure that those representing him at the college level are competent, have integrity, and are student-friendly. The truth is that without the students, the registrar has no business in the university. So, he must ensure that he posts competent and students-friendly officers to places where they will need to interact with and manage the students' affairs; and he must not lose track of verification. I must emphasise, once again, that the registrar is the custodian of the institution's rules and regulations.

Can you please explain to us the importance of a registrar in a university setup?

The first thing is that the registrar is the chief administrative officer of that university. He is in charge of the day-to-day administrative activities of the university. He is responsible to the Vice Chancellor for this, except for matters that have to do with finance for which the Bursar is responsible. Frankly speaking, the work of a registrar is enormous; he is the custodian of records; and the secretary to all the committees in the university. Of course, he will delegate where and when necessary because he can't be everywhere. The VC is the chairman while the registrar is the secretary. Again, the registrar is in charge of rules and regulations, which means he has to understand them. He is the bridge between the committees and the university; and ensures the welfare of staff and students. He also signs the certificates. Now, one aspect of the functions of a registrar which I don't enjoy is that he is the one that stands in the witness box when legal issues arise. So, the registrar's work is enormous. The Vice-Chancellor relies on him for the interpretation of rules; for advice and guidance on policy matters; he sees the emails and writes a lot. For all of these and more, he needs to constantly be up and doing.

LASUED will Influence Primary and Adult Teacher Education

He was a part of the Michael Otedola College of Primary Education, one of the legacy colleges that transmuted into the Lagos State University of Education as a bursar. With the birth of LASUED, Mr Bolukale Olutobi Ayodele was elevated as the new institution's bursar. While time did not permit us to have a one-on-one interview with the chief financial officer of LASUED, he was gracious enough to answer a few questions via email where he avers that LASUED will influence primary and adult teacher education in Nigeria.

What does your elevation as the Acting Bursar for the Lagos State University of Education mean to you?

For me, it means additional responsibilities and an opportunity to serve man and God.

Would you consider this your best professional accomplishment?

Well, Yes. Even though my exposure in the banking industry involves higher numbers and volumes, this position allows me to be part of a foundation of something that affects and will affect our youths and, surely, the future of the state and generations.

You have over 25 years of experience as a Bursar; what has kept you going all the years?

Love for continuous improvement, love for others, and knowledge about what and how.

What are the qualities that make a good Bursar?
A good bursar must have integrity, accuracy, insight, foresight, and hindsight.

What do you consider the most difficult part of your job?

Convincing and securing people's understanding of money usage and the elusive nature of matching money with various demands.

What was your reaction to the news that the Adeniran Ogunsanya College & Michael Otedola College of Primary Education would be upgraded to a university?

Joy. A spiritual joy that cannot be qualified.

What's your vision for the institution and where would you like to see it in 10 years?

To be the best university of education that educates others on better ways of educating Nigerians.

What difference do you think LASUED will make in teacher education in Nigeria?

It will influence primary and adult teacher education simultaneously. Remember, one of the main foci of one of the institutions is the novel focus on primary childhood education.

What has been the biggest challenge in nurturing the new university?

Generally, having to start the university with few examples to copy from because of the uniqueness of merging two institutions was a challenge. I do think this is a common experience all over the world.

One year after, how will you rate the management of LASUED and what can be done differently?

Fantastic and praiseworthy. It is quite involving and tedious to obtain a licence, package curriculums, obtain resource verification and take in students and start classes within a year. Wow! Give it to the management and their supporting folks.

Even though my exposure in the banking industry involves higher numbers and volumes, this position allows me to be part of a foundation of something that affects and will affect our youths and, surely, the future of the state and generations.

How will you rate the administration of Gov. Sanwo Olu in Education?

Performing, people-focused, and strategically forward-looking.

What will you like to see him achieve in his second term?

Continue and consolidate on the major far-reaching projects like ours and many others.

Please, tell us more about you.

My name is Bolukale, Olutobi Ayodele, a fellow of the Institute of Chartered Accountants of Nigeria (ICAN). I hold a Bachelor of Accounting and Master of Business Administration degrees. I am a professional accountant, certified Cisco associate, and Microsoft system engineer with over 27 year work experience in banking & finance, agricultural, manufacturing, audit, and tax, and educational sectors (of Nigeria & United States). I love the continuous improvement in knowledge of man and God.

What's your advice for a young person interested in being a Bursar?

Getting to the top is of God. However, individual preparation through continuous knowledge acquisition, persistent hard work with a balanced (God, family, job, and friends) lifestyle, love for others and team-playing, integrity, and personal health consciousness are important things needed to get and stay at the top.

Before the end of my tenure, LASUED's library will be among the well-automated academic libraries all over the world

Dr. Abayomi Iman is the University Librarian of the Lagos State University of Education. He has been in the saddle since March 15, 2022. This exclusive interview, he sheds light on the library services on the two campuses of the young institution and assures that he would position LASUED's library among the best in the world.

How has it been in the last year since the establishment of this institution; what has been your experience as a principal officer?

I was appointed the acting university librarian on March 15, 2022. Actually, it's been a very serious challenge because we moved from a college to a university and our college-based experience is different from that of a university. Another challenge was that this university was birthed through the merger of two colleges of education, and the two are located at two different ends of Lagos State. It has not been easy traversing from one end to the other end, but to the glory of God, we have been able to manage the situation very well. As the head of the library, I have to see that the two libraries are linked together and that they function very well. The library here at Noforija was prepared to manage and meet the library needs of the college of education. Mind you, the two colleges had been running degree programmes through affiliations, so the libraries were prepared for this new development. So, we have little or no problem in terms of our collections compared to the standard of a university library.

How easy or otherwise was it for you to adapt from your previous position in the college to that of a university librarian?

As a librarian, I have been trained and equipped to perform at any level. So, there is no issue with adapting or moving from one level to the other. I was adequately prepared. There is no issue with that at all.

Will you consider this your biggest professional achievement yet?

For any man that starts a career, his target will always be to get to the top. I am particularly grateful to the almighty God and the Lagos State government, especially Mr. Governor and the Governing Council for considering me worthy to become the acting university librarian. It is a very great achievement, and at the same time, it is a challenge, but I have been coping very well.

How did you feel when you heard that the college would become a university?

My feeling was so super, the reason being that the library had been serving even degree students; and it had always been our dream, especially with the level of student enrolment that we had. Our focus was that when you work in a tertiary institution, your target should always be the highest level attainable, especially when you have a Ph.D., your target will be to become a professor, and that is the target of everybody. Therefore, I am elated that our dream has finally been fulfilled.

What has been the biggest challenge so far?

We had prepared very well at both ends because it had always been the yearning of the colleges to become a university. But, then, we thought that they (the state government) would create two different universities. So, our target was to become an Open University while the other college would be a physical university. But the Lagos State government merged the two colleges. The only challenge that we have, but which is highly surmountable, is the logistics between the two campuses. However, we are ready for it and we have been moving on steadily.

How seamless or otherwise has the transmutation been?

Luckily for me, when the university was announced, I was the chairman of the transition committee for the Noforija campus: I worked under Dr. Nasiru Olajide Onibon, who was our general chairman, while Dr. Daodu was the local chairman at the other end. The three of us were saddled with the assignment of merging the two colleges in practical terms using the academic blueprint given to us by the governor. So, it's been a smooth programme because we had to ensure that every member of the staff and the community was aware. So, we organised different seminars, workshops, and trainings to the extent that everybody was now on the same page and ready for the university.

What difference do you envision LASUED making in teacher education?

A university is different from a college of education. The college of education is to prepare middle-level manpower for the education industry, but with the population of Lagos, we need to move higher to solve societal problems. We also observed that the level of performance of students in the secondary schools is not very encouraging, which might be the reason the Lagos State government decided that it wanted high-level manpower hence the establishment of the university. The focus of this particular university is actually to prepare students that will become graduates and function effectively as teachers in the secondary school system. Not only that, the university's target is not to stop at graduating students alone; we want to go on to the postgraduate level so that we continue to produce Master's and Ph.D. degree holders. That will make a big difference in education in Lagos State.

Remember that there is an assumption that Nigerian youths don't read again; from your vantage position as a librarian, do you agree?

That has always been an assumption. Nigerian youth are reading, but the question is what are they reading? When you talk about reading, we read different types of things, especially with the advent of social media and other digital evolutions. You will see people glued to their phones, but what are they reading? Are they reading what will be beneficial to society or not? The belief that people are not reading is not true. Nigerian youths are reading, but what are they reading, and in what modes? Rather than using physical books, they tend to use electronic materials; hence, our library has acquired data-based contents to the extent that we even have millions of documents in the form of journals and textbooks that will benefit them and the community because they are the future of Nigeria. It is what we bequeath to them now that they will develop and, with that, they will make the nation proud later.

What role does technology play in your profession, and how equipped is LASUED for this?

We are now in a world of technology.

Technology is now an infectious disease; whether you like it or not, it's just like COVID-19. Everyone has got to key into it. Given this fact, our library has been transformed into both physical and virtual; we have the conventional library where we expect our users to come and use the hard copies of materials, and, at the same time, they can access it from different locations. The E-library is using technology. We even offer reference services to our students whereby from their various homes, they can send questions to the library and they will be answered by the reference service unit. We can interact with the students anywhere they are – even if they are not in Nigeria – without actually coming to the library.

What do you think the state government should invest in more to accelerate the university's growth?

I'm very sure that the Lagos State government is on the right path. This is a metropolitan city; very urbane and full of educated and enlightened people. Now, for our university to make an impact and a great in-road into the society, I will implore and advise that we move with the time; improve our technology; and do more training for staff so that we will be able to perform effectively to the expectation and admiration of the state. So, as a metropolitan community, we have issues like rising population, flooding, change in weather, and transportation. Luckily, I'm very much aware that in our College of Management and Social Sciences, we have a transport studies department, which is aside from the Geographic Studies department. The university will, with time, help to solve some of the problems highlighted above if the state government can extend more funding to it because we cannot be dependent on donors. The Lagos State government is our proprietor, so we expect more funding that will enable us to deliver on the main mandates of the university in teaching/learning, research, and even community development.

How many people know the importance of a university librarian? Can you please further help us to enlighten the larger community on the importance of a university librarian?

Let us first look at the importance of a library in tertiary institutions; it is from that we can now say a university librarian is performing this or that act. If we can do that definitely, we will understand and respect university librarians in the society. Now, an academic library is established by the very law that establishes a university to support teaching, learning, and research for human development. Then, we can ask, is the academic library living up to expectations? Yes, I can say, because apart from the conventional library where we have the physical library, most libraries have joined the league of electronic libraries that users can access 24/7 and from anywhere around the world. If we do these and the impact is felt by the community, it means that the university librarian is doing something valuable. Another quality expected of a university librarian is to be academically and administratively sound. This is because we don't relate to just our students and the staff: we relate to the community and grant access to public libraries around to use our materials via our e-library. In so doing, the community will feel the impact.

What will you like to be remembered for after your tenure?

I moved from a college librarian to a university librarian by the grace of God. As the pioneer librarian here, my target is to establish a world-class academic library that can match any in the world. I was in Liverpool and London last year to see their universities. Before the end of my tenure, LASUED's library will be among the well-automated academic libraries all over the world.

...for our university to make an impact and a great in-road into the society, I will implore and advise that we move with the time; improve our technology, and do more training for staff so that we will be able to perform effectively to the expectation and admiration of the state.

When LASUED Inaugurated First Senate

Vice-Chancellor, Prof. Bilkis Bidemi Lafiaji-Okuneye and Deputy Vice-Chancellor, Dr. Nosiru Onibon

Mrs. Sekinat Olusola Yusuf, Pro-Chancellor/Chairman, Governing Council and the Vice-Chancellor, Prof. Bilkis Bidemi Lafiaji Okuneye

The inaugural meeting of the Senate, Lagos State University of Education, LASUED, held last November at the main campus, Oto-Ijanikin, Lagos. In attendance were the Pro-Chancellor and Chairman, Governing Council of the institution, Alhaja Sekinat Yusuf; the Deputy Vice-Chancellor, Dr. Nosiru Onibon, Principal Officers of the institution, and other Members of the University Governing Council.

Speaking at the event, the Vice-Chancellor, Prof Bidemi Bilkis Lafiaji-Okuneye, recalled that an Executive Bill for the establishment of LASUED was passed by the Lagos State House of Assembly on 22nd November 2021, and signed into law by Governor Babajide Olusola Sanwo-Olu on 2nd February 2022.

“Following (the) submission of the appropriate documents to the Executive Secretary (ES) of the National Universities Commission (NUC), the Governor received the Certificate of Recognition of Lagos State University of Education on 8th February 2022. With this, the University hit the ground running and actively participated in the 2022/2023 JAMB Admissions Exercise.

"The Technical Implementation Committee has been committed to and consistent in the implementation programmes. Retreats and workshops were organised for the Principal Officers and other key stakeholders of this great University at one time or the other. The right placement had been carried out. The Governing Council Members had been constituted and the Principal Officers appointed in an acting capacity. Other planned actions are being carried out unabated."

She disclosed further that a resource verification visit was carried out by panels of experts from the National Universities Commission to the proposed 67 academic programmes in the university from 19th to 30th September 2022. "It is my pleasure to inform this Senate that the superintendent body had approved the establishment of the full-time mode of the undergraduate programmes to be run in the university with effect from the 2022/2023 academic session. However, Civic Education was not approved because there is no BMAS for it yet.

"With this positive development, all eyes are on the Senate for actions and this underscores the need for this crucial meeting. The race had started well, and the batons accurately passed, it is the turn of the Senate to gallantly run the race to the tape. I have no doubt that with the pedigree of the Members of this Senate, our vision of taking the lead in the teacher education industry within the shortest time possible is just a matter of time." She concluded by wishing the senate members a successful tenure in office.

AS LASUED WELCOMES PIONEER STUDENTS...

The Lagos State University of Education (LASUED), Otto/Ijanikin, Tuesday, January 31, matriculated a total of 3,300 newly-admitted students.

The matriculated students are out of no fewer than 8, 000 candidates who applied for admission to the institution.

The Vice-Chancellor, Prof. Bidemi Lafiaji-Okuneye, said only the best candidates, who had been found successful in the United Tertiary Matriculation Examination (UTME) and the simple screening conducted by the university, were offered admission.

"Students have been admitted into the various colleges where their programmes are domiciled, such as the College of Humanities Education, College of Science Education, and College of Management and Social Sciences Education.

"Others are the College of Vocational and Entrepreneurship Education, College of Specialised and Professional Education, and College of Language and Communication Arts Education.

"It should be noted that the university's capacity for admission was pegged at 3,300 by the National Universities Commission, based on the result of the resource verification exercise conducted in the last quarter of 2022," she said. The Vice-Chancellor added that the wide margin between the number of candidates who applied to LASUED and those given admission underscored the justification of the state government's decision to establish more universities.

"For instance, embarking on a massive expansionist programme that is complemented by the special renewal of physical and infrastructural facilities in the university campuses and other factors can shoot up the university's admission capacity.

"We earnestly appeal to Governor Babajide Sanwo-Olu to build in each of the two campuses a 1,000 capacity lecture theatre, standard senate building, and befitting main auditorium.

"Furthermore, there is an urgent need for government to help reclaim the swampy portion of the university's land at the Oto/Ijanikin campus and control encroachment at the Noforija campus, including proper landscaping. We also need support to build students' hostels, à staff quarters through a public-private partnership arrangement," she said.

Lafaiji-Okuneye said that as a university of education, we were privileged to have scientifically discovered the enormous potential for teacher education's innovation capable of driving the attainment of equity in education.

"We are fully set, not only to scale innovations from the margin to the Centre of Teacher Education system but also, to source support and sustain those superlative inventions that address inequality and quality.

"As the pioneer acting vice-chancellor, I am determined to build on our well-established leading position in the teacher education sector to become a highly sought-after university of education within a short time possible," Lafaiji-Okuneye said.

The Vice-Chancellor advised the matriculating students to steer clear of cultism, hooliganism, and other forms of social menace that might impugn the integrity of the institution.

ASUU Strike? Not Here!

To avoid the recurring incidence of strike actions by higher institutions, the Lagos State government has announced plans to establish a tertiary education trust fund.

n autonomous funding mechanism that will keep all three Lagos State's tertiary institutions on the path of sustainability has been initiated by the state government. Lagos is home to three universities: Lagos State University, LASU; Lagos State University of Education, LASUED; and the Lagos State University of Science and Technology.

In a move that will creatively revolutionise the model for the funding of tertiary education in the state, Governor Babajide Sanwo-Olu announced that the government would establish the Lagos State Tertiary Education Trust Fund.

Governor Sanwo-Olu announced this when he received members of the Visitation Panel to the Lagos State University (LASU) led by the former Vice-Chancellor of the University of Lagos (UNILAG), Prof. Abdulrahman Bello, at the State House, Marina. The panel, set up in November 2021, turned in a 322-page recommendation for the governor's implementation towards meeting the university's contemporary needs in academic growth and physical development.

Governor Sanwo-Olu said the need to create an independent funding channel for the tertiary institutions became pertinent, given the nature of disputes characterising the national university system, which had led to the perennial staff strikes and closure of campuses across the country.

The governor directed the Attorney General, Mr. Moyosore Onigbanjo, SAN, and the Special Adviser on Education, Hon. Tokunbo Wahab, to fashion out the statutory framework that will give legal approval to the Fund.

He said: "Now that we have three universities in Lagos, I believe there is a need for us to set up Lagos State Tertiary Education Trust Fund, which, in our view, will create a sustainable model and the funding that is required, both internally and externally, to strengthen academic research, learning and all that is necessary to keep these universities on track of their mission.

"This is an idea whose time has come at the appropriate period many schools are under closure due to industrial disputes. I am issuing the responsibility to Attorney General and Special Adviser on Education to create the legal framework for the birth of the Trust Fund. This will be another legacy initiative our government is bringing to sustain education in our state. This will create a financial model that will ensure the sustainability of these schools."

Governor Sanwo-Olu said the Trust Fund would create an additional funding source for the three universities, aside from the monthly subventions and intervention funds from federal education agencies, including Tertiary Education Trust Fund (TETFund).

Congregating for LASUED's Development

Last December, the Lagos State University of Education, LASUED, held its first congregation, which is the general assembly of all senior members of the university, including academic and non-academic.

In her welcome address, the Vice Chancellor, Prof. Bidemi Bilkis Lafajji-Okuneye, said the presence of the congregants was a testament to their interest in the development of the nascent university. She added that her administration's achievements within the short period of the establishment of the university inspired the congregation. The Vice-Chancellor said further that the meeting underscored the commitment of her administration to execute the university's transitional programmes and guide the congregation to elect its representatives.

Prof. Lafajji-Okuneye announced that the university took part in the 2022/2023 Joint Admissions and Matriculation Board's examination and received thousands of applications from candidates. She also informed the congregation that aside from Civic Education, the NUC had approved full-time undergraduate programmes to be run with effect from the 2022/2023 academic session.

She thanked Governor Babajide Sanwo-Olu for the establishment of the university and praised the Special Adviser on Education to Lagos State Governor, Tokunbo Wahab, for his professionalism and sense of responsibility towards the institution.

Like the biblical three wise men, these nine lawmakers who constitute the House Committee on Education (Tertiary Institutions) have bequeathed an invaluable gift to the current generation of young Lagosians and posterity. They achieved the near-impossible feat of passing the bill seeking to transform the Adeniran Ogunsanya College of Education, Ijanikin, and the Michael Otedola College of Primary Education, Nofirija, Epe, into a substantive university of education.

In many ways, they epitomise the nature of positive revolt. With quiet will and unrelenting zest, they revolutionised the state's tertiary education system by passing the bill that established the Lagos State University of Education, LASUED; and the Lagos State University of Science and Technology, LASUSTECH. They crossed several swells of challenges and perilous turfs of odds one after the other, seeking qualitative, affordable, and accessible education for Lagosians at large. It was never their intention to be deified and become egocentric gods that men worshipped. These lawmakers deserve eloquent and ornamental tributes. They are real heroes who attained glory by daring to do the impossible.

One of them, Hon. Abdul-Sobur Olayiwola Olawale, sadly, transited last November. History will be kind to them.

Like LASU, LASUED Will Change the Face of Education in Africa

Although he is considered the youngest in the Lagos State House of Assembly, Hon. Ibrahim Ajani Owolabi, the member representing Lagos Mainland Constituency 1, chairs the House Committee on Tertiary Institutions. That committee pulled off one of the greatest achievements of Governor Babajide Sanwo-Olu's administration by passing the bill establishing two universities (the Lagos State University of Education and the Lagos State University of Science and Technology). Even the youthful lawmaker considers this feat something he would be eternally proud of. Born in 1985 into a popular political family, Hon Ajani is a Public Relations graduate of the University of Hertfordshire. He got his master's degree in Marketing Management at Middlesex University, both in the United Kingdom. An educationist turned lawmaker, Hon. Ajani reckons that in a few years, LASUED will change the face of education in Africa as the Lagos State University is steadily doing.

By Olawunmi Abiona

Many young people are leaving Nigeria for greener pastures abroad, but you chose to return home. What motivated that decision?

I was lecturing at Newham College in the UK. I did a lot of charity work as well. I spent a large part of my early life here, but when I was abroad, I got integrated with the society there. I started to understand the way that society and its education sector operated. I understood and appreciated the way education makes for the betterment of human resources, especially young people. Being an educationist, I felt that the best way was to come in and see where I could contribute to the laws that impact the system positively such that we can eventually get to a point where our human resources will be a resource that people are seeking.

What are your responsibilities as the chairman House Committee on Tertiary Institutions?

The bulk of my responsibility is to oversee the activities of the tertiary institutions in the state. Once a year, they send their budgets, and I go over what they have done previously and what they plan to do for the next year. Also, I will say that whenever the people who are engaged with the institutions – be they students, staff, or parents – should they have a petition; it comes to my table and, thereafter, to the table of the Right Honourable Speaker.

How challenging is this position for you?

It's been easy and beneficial given that I am coming from an educational background; I was a lecturer before I entered politics. As such, it's enjoyable. It is also very exciting especially because this will be the first time I get to work at the backend of education, creating the law and the regulation that help to back the higher institution ecosystem. The LASUED Law, in particular, was interesting because its premise was to switch the type of education that we had previously and move it forward into what we can call a more holistic tertiary institution. In all, it has been exciting for me.

What will you consider your biggest achievement in this position?

It will have to be the two bills sponsoring the two new institutions. I think out of everything I have done as a politician, including the empowerment programs, this is the one I am most proud of. I told the Special Adviser (on Education), Hon. Tokunbo Wahab, this is a fantastic thing that I have the opportunity to be a part of. The fact that in the future, they will say, 'Honourables so and so were involved in so and so,' is enough for me. I believe I played a big enough part in the development of our children now and in the future just by being able to help develop this law and see it to fruition.

Can you, please, shed more light on how the Lagos State University of Education came to be?

Well, we set up two institutions simultaneously (LASUED and the University of Science and Technology). So, there were a lot of consultants, stakeholders, etc, that were involved in the creation of the two institutions. Given the antecedents of the erstwhile legacy institutions, the transition was seamless, especially with the help of the executive arm of government and the plans that the relevant operators already had in place. They knew where they wanted to go, so it was easy for us at the House of Assembly to hear the people's voices. We had stakeholders' meetings and a public hearing to ensure that the people, the key stakeholders, were involved in the development. Therefore, it was seamless. We didn't have any major hiccups other than the issue of which campus would be the main campus. That was the issue that we had a couple of back and forths with 'Baales' from both sides. At the end of the day, it was the history of the institution that carried the day. I am happy that I was able to play the role of a mediator in that situation then.

Why Ijanikin and not Noforija?

It was because of the history of the institution. Added to that were the available buildings; the structures; the infrastructure, and the ability it already had to be a university campus; whereas the Noforija site was still a bit behind Ijanikin on those counts. I went to have a look at the site and looking at the level of investments that Mr. Governor would have to put in to make that place the main campus, it is far more financially justified to leave Ijanikin as the main campus.

Was there any point during the process of getting the university registered that you felt like it would not work and why?

There was no time like that at all. I had complete faith in the execution team. The SAE (Special Adviser on Education) and I kept in contact all through. I was invited to one of the presentations in Abuja, but I couldn't make it. However, Hon. Tokunbo Wahab (the SAE) broke down to me all that transpired there. As I said, the executive was certain about what they wanted to do; so it was a win-win thing. I didn't have any hassles at all.

What impact do you think LASUED will have on the educational system?

I think a university of education is very important. We must know how to educate ourselves, and the good thing about it is that the two Provosts of the legacy colleges attended a conference in the UK together with all of us; for the development of something they call Technology Trading Offices in which educational institutions engage with offices of conglomerates and businesses to develop together. The best type of education to suit the needs of the industries, and I think LASUED and LASUTECH and LASU together, are taking this on board. They will completely change the face of education, not just in Lagos, and not just in Nigeria, but in West Africa. This is because once we can start developing institutes within these institutions, for instance, a university of education can work with people who are trained in mechanical engineering and develop an institute of training for mechanical engineering. This can help to develop the research that will go into the future of mechanical engineering. Before the needs of the actual industry become obvious, they would have known what the needs of the actual industry would be and what exactly to teach the students along those lines. So, I think all three institutions together will also ease the burden on what we currently face in Lagos in terms of people wanting to come to LASU, being one of the best institutions in West Africa. So we used LASU Law to develop the other two Laws, and we are hoping that the two institutions would perform at the same level as LASU to ease the burden that LASU faces every year.

What is your vision for the institution?

I envision it to be an institution that produces the best that Africa can deliver in terms of human resources, and this will happen across the board. The fact it is called a university of education does not mean that its educational base will be limited to just education. The two new institutions would be developed just like LASU and they will produce global products as LASU has done. Those of us in the House who are LASU products are a good example of this. I believe what we are doing is creating a future for Lagos State and Nigeria that we can all be proud of.

What, in your opinion, does the state have to do to make the school attractive to potential students?

I think they're doing that already. The SAE was very keen on the type of education that will be given at the institutions. He did a lot of research. I sincerely feel very honoured to have been able to work with him during that period. I got to tap a lot of knowledge from the man. He did a lot of research into practical education and non-practical education. Recall that previously we had courses that had become outdated all of which the SAE questioned. What he and his team did was replace such outdated and unnecessary courses. They also changed all unnecessary academic structures that don't benefit the students. They introduced courses that are relevant to industries and the corporate world.

You are considered the youngest lawmaker in Lagos state. Please, tell us how your political journey began.?

My political journey began when I was just 14 years old. I spent the early part of my life in the UK, probably from the age of eight to 14. When I came back as I said, I was used to the society over there: how they do things like the roads and the kind of amenities that were provided for the citizens. So, when I came back, I was disappointed by what I saw. Meanwhile, then, my father was a House of Representatives member. I looked at him and, as a child, I did not understand what was happening. I said 'Daddy, what is this' and he said if you can do better, come and do it. From then, I decided that I would become a lawmaker, so I took a step closer to the goings-on in political circles and began to get involved. What many young people today don't understand is that if you must enter politics, you must start from the grassroots. I had to learn that from the scratch and since then till now, I have been developing myself in the political space slowly.

Where will you want to see LASUED in the next 10 years?

I believe we haven't done enough in education even though we are making major strides. Honestly, with institutions like LASUED, I believe that in the next 10yrs, we should be looking at the type of educational system with an eclectic mix between what they do at the primary level like Montessori, and what is now going on in professional education. Taking practical knowledge from industries and mixing it with what you will learn in school; what you are good at; or what you do to the best of your physical and mental capability; mixing those two and evolving a new type of educational system. 100 years ago, Thomas Edison said our system of education is outdated and that is the same educational system we are still using now. It is about time that we started looking at a new way of educating ourselves rather than relying on what we have before. How we were doing yesterday shouldn't be how we will do it tomorrow.

The Battle for LASUED was Tough

The legislative process that birthed the Lagos State University of Education was a tough and tricky one. Hon. Victor Olusegun Babatunde Akande, the member representing Ojo Constituency 1 in the Lagos State House of Assembly, was in the thick of the action. A successful educationist, lawyer, second-term lawmaker, and member of the House Committee on Education, and Tertiary Institutions, Akande recalls and recounts how he and other committee members had to battle it out in the House to ensure that LASUED materialised.

What are your responsibilities as a member of the Lagos State House of Assembly Committee on Tertiary Institutions?

It is for us to ascertain that the quality of education that Lagos State offers is functional and that the state's vision regarding the education of its citizens is fulfilled. We are to look into their (the schools) budgetary allocations and ensure that we work on them and capture the kernels of the government budget as regards the institutions. Now, education is not cheap and, as such, we cannot put all the responsibilities of educating our young ones on the government alone. So it is just for us to strike a balance and see what programs the government has for the masses and vice versa making sure that whatever is put in the budget and the process are strictly adhered to. We also go on visitations to see whether the monetary allocations meet the budget provisions. For this, we go to the schools, check the infrastructure, look at whatever is on the ground and juxtapose that with whatever comes in and check what was the budgeted provision of last year viz a viz, the current year; what are the developments that have been attracted over this period, etc. We just have to know to be able to forecast and look forward to better years.

How challenging will you say this position has been for you?

There is nothing in life that is not challenging. It depends on your modus operandi of combating the challenges that come. Quite naturally, it is challenging, especially when you are trying to make sure that you do the best for the greatest number of people. Truth is, you can't please everybody. Whatever policy and effort you put in place might not go down well with some people. So, it depends on the perception of the people and from the aspect they are looking at it. I will say holistically, we have tried and I have put in whatever I have to make sure that there are better developments and improvements in the education of our people in Lagos State.

What will you consider your biggest achievements in this position?

Making sure that LASUED becomes LASUED because I know what my debate on the floor of the house entailed. I know the way I fought assiduously to ensure that the erstwhile colleges got the status of a university; and again, I fought spiritedly to make sure that Ijanikin became the main campus; and everybody gave me kudos for it, which I very much appreciate.

Let's talk about the Lagos State University of Education; what was the journey from conceptualisation to reality like?

It has been long. It's not something that started just yesterday. Year in, year out, from the former provost to the present provost and the staff. We had been sitting on it for a long time and, thank God, it became what it is while I am still a member of the House; when I still have the zeal and the capacity to fight for it; and when I am still part and parcel of that institution. By being part and parcel, I mean while representing that constituency; and not that I am a student of that school. It is my joy and pride that it was a herculean task that got accomplished.

Was there any point during the process of getting the university registered that you felt it would not work, and why?

No. I was determined. I put on my fighting gloves and I sharpened my teeth and my tongue to be able to talk; to the extent that I was ready to bite. Go and watch it, the zeal on the floor of the house. I gave it to them. You know we've been lacking this kind of representation from that axis; so if we had done it lackadaisically, it would have slipped off our hands. I thank God for one thing: I was in the US when I heard that they were going to deliberate on it; I just took the next available flight and came home because I knew we just had to fight for it. It was a tough battle that involved traditional institutions, government officials, and top politicians. At this juncture, I must acknowledge and appreciate the pivotal contributions of Honourable Setonji who rose to the occasion, and together, we fought like wounded lions.

What impact do you think LASUED will have on the educational system in Lagos

State?

It will open up an educational gateway to our youths in that axis. Most of them don't like going to school. When it is in their domain, they will be inspired. They will see some of the students and they will be motivated to go to school. Secondly, it's going to increase the economic viability of the area. Whether you like it or not, we are gaining; we are not losing; and that is where we are attracting development to not just our area but to Lagos State in general.

What is your vision for the institution?

I envision a university that will be the hub of educational standardization in Lagos and Nigeria. We, as Lagos State, have to teach others what they don't know. Let us make this one a role model for other universities of education in the country. I know that with all hands on deck, the sky will be just a starting point.

What plans does the state have to make the school attractive to potential students?

You could see that education is prominent on the T.H.E.M.E.S Agenda of Governor Babajide Sanwo-Olu. Mr. Governor has a plan and if he did not, he would not have even started it or allowed it to see the light of day. But, then, I cannot speak on his behalf; I can only talk from the perspective of what I see him doing; and I can assure you that 'Didun l'osan maa so' (meaning, the orange can only secrete sweet juice).

What inspires you?

My dad is an educationist; I am an educationist, too, even though I later became a lawyer; but notwithstanding, I am still teaching. When you rise from nothing to something; you have the fear of God; and you have the humanitarian spirit in you, you will always want to do more for the masses who, in the first place, gave me a platform and opportunity to serve them.

Where do you see LASUED in the next 10 years?

Greatness! I want to see them churning out quality graduates who can hold their own anywhere in the world. When I finished school, I served in Abia State and WAEC was recruiting people as examiners. Meanwhile, I just finished in LASU with a first degree in Biology Education. We all (in thousands) now went to write exams. We had people from Obafemi Awolowo University, University of Benin, University of Lagos, and all sorts of schools. I was shortlisted among the first 100; then in the best 20, then, the first ten; until I was shortlisted among the last two. In the end, I beat everybody to it. That was the year I became an examiner with WAEC in Abia State and not even in Lagos. I started marking WAEC scripts in Abia. I have gone into all these to illustrate what I always tell people; yes, LASU is a state university, but its products and the quality it offers will beat anybody anywhere. That was and is still my message. And, that is the place I see LASUED in the next 10 years.

We Worked Assiduously to Ensure that LASUED Became a Reality

Getting the Lagos State University of Education to become a reality was not a stroll in the park. Hon. (Engr.) Setonji David, the member representing Badagry Constituency 2 in the Lagos State House of Assembly, should know because he was a member of the seven man-committee that led the charge. A Fellow of the Nigeria Society of Civil Engineers, and Fellow of the Nigerian Institute of Management, Setonji, aka Shine Your Eye, speaks extensively about the long-drawn process that preceded LASUED's birth.

Please, tell us about the House Committee on Tertiary Education and its responsibilities.

Basically, the lawmakers have three responsibilities designed by the law of the land, which are: to represent the people; make law for the good governance of the state; and also to perform oversight functions. Our role in this committee is to perform oversight functions, which include lawmaking and, if there is a need for it, amending the existing laws.

What will you consider your biggest achievements in this position?

Several... We are lawmakers; our duty is to make laws for our people. Notwithstanding, we are still obliged to provide some things for them. So, we make sure that we do that. In my area, I discovered that there was a deficit of classrooms, so, I built blocks of classrooms for them, which were commissioned by the Honourable Speaker. I have also provided boreholes for our people and numerous other things, but these are the ones that I clearly remember now.

Let's talk about the Lagos State University of Education; how was the journey from conceptualisation to reality?

You know that the colleges started many years ago. The main campus (Ijanikin) is in my division. As you know, I represent Badagry in the House. The agitation to upgrade the college to a university started many years ago – before the creation of other satellite campuses. Many of our people are products of that school, even when it was offering NCE; when it was still Adeniran Ogunsanya College of Education. It is a school that is doing so much for the uplift of educational standards in Lagos State. Lagos is the most populated state in Nigeria. Even two universities are not enough for us. So, we needed to upgrade the college to a university. So, it is a thing that we all welcomed and worked assiduously to ensure that it became a reality; and we thank God that we have a very efficient governor; he is a listening and responsive governor. We are all working with him to ensure that he delivers in Lagos State.

Was there any point during the process of getting the university registered that you felt like it would not work and why?

There was never a time like that. I remember that other parts of Lagos State agitated to take it to their area. But we reminded them that the agitation for the school to be upgraded to a university started from Ijanikin, and it would not be good to take the main campus out of that vicinity. That was the only area of contention. We tried our best, and at the end of the day, we prevailed in ensuring that in the law that established the university, the main campus remained in Ijanikin. That was the major area where we had issues.

What impact do you think LASUED will have on the educational System?

“It is a school that is doing so much for the uplift of educational standards in Lagos State. Lagos is the most populated state in Nigeria. Even two universities are not enough for us. So, we needed to upgrade the college to a university. So, it is a thing that we all welcomed and worked assiduously to ensure that it became a reality.”

Very important. Education is the bedrock of every society, and we must take it seriously. We desire to get to a point where every citizen of this country will have access to quality education. That is our goal in Lagos State, and we are believing God that we will get to that level. Education is key for any societal development. Whatever we desire in this society and this country depends, to a large extent, on the quality of education we have. So, we cannot take away education in the development of any society. In Lagos State, we have so many programs in our educational sector. The only challenge is the issue of funds; we don't have enough funds to meet the demands of our goals, but we are trying our best as a state.

What is your vision for the LASUED?

At present, they have challenges in the area of admission. They have many students that want to come in, but there is not enough room to admit everybody. The upgrade has actually thrown up some challenges, which the school management has been striving to resolve. They (Management) want to, as soon as possible, expand the school so that it can admit many more students because we don't want to see any child in Lagos that does not attend one educational institution or the other. That is the ultimate goal of Lagos State, and we will get there.

What plans does the state have to make the school attractive to potential students?

As I said earlier, education is very key to the development of any country; so all we need to do is for the students to understand why they need to go to school. Education is not about wealth, but it is also about wealth when you are exposed; when you have those things, you can now sit down and develop your innate qualities. That is why we will continue to appeal to students, too, to try their best despite the scarcity of funds and within the limits of what they have. The management is trying their best to ensure that the face-lift of the existing structures is prioritised so that things can get better, which shows that the management is trying to give the best to the student.

Where do you see LASUED in the next 10 years?

(I see) A geometric increase in the number of students being admitted; an increase in the number of faculties and departments. I believe that with time and more funding, such areas that are supposed to be touched but which are not yet will be touched. There are still some courses that are not readily available in Nigerian Universities. We want to get to that level where LASUED can accommodate such courses in its programmes. The ultimate is to be independent as soon as possible, and it will always be better to develop our society in such a manner that we depend less and less on others.

I Expect to See LASUED Grow into an Institution that Ranks High Among Global Universities

Beyond the collective euphoria of the establishment of the Lagos State University of Education, it is for Hon. Suraudeen Olanrewaju Tijani, a member of the Lagos State House of Assembly representing Ojo II State Constituency, a personal victory. The consummate grassroots politician is the legislator representing the constituency in which the main campus of LASUED is located. Also, Tijani was part of the committee that midwived the law establishing the institution a year ago. He spoke briefly with Olawunmi Abiona on the so-far-so-good story of the institution.

Please, tell us the story of how Adediran Ogunsanya College of Education became a university of education.

Historically speaking, the process of transforming the former Adeniran Ogunsanya College of Education into the Lagos State University of Education started at a town hall meeting that we held in 2020. A former president of the students union (Alagbe David Sewanu a.k.a Doxology) called our attention to the fact that the school was due for upgrading after which we reported back to the floor of the House of Assembly. That was how the process started. I came up with the motion and we had to refer it to the Executive, which went on to sponsor the bill. Eventually, we succeeded in having the university. And, today, it is working!

What impact do you think this new institution will have on your constituency?

Considering that Lagos is the world's fastest-growing megacity, I think the best we need to do is to ensure that every aspect of Lagos State is up to international standards. You and I know that the education sector is key to all of this. Remember also that education occupies a major space in Governor Sanwo-Olu's T.H.E.M.E.S Agenda. As such, LASUED is envisioned and managed to mirror the Centre of Excellence credo of Lagos State, the world-class qualities of Mr. Governor's projects, and the mega city status of the state. When the school achieves these, it would put, not just the school, but also our constituency at the centre of all the above which would naturally impact very positively on the people and the community. Moreover, grooming and producing quality and qualified teachers from here would make a great impact on the place and the people.

Can you please tell us specifically your roles in the establishment of this institution?

The school is situated in my constituency and it is my responsibility to make sure that I pass the message of my constituency to the relevant arms of government. I did just that and today, the university is here!

What are your expectations/vision for LASUED?

I expect to see the university grow into an institution that ranks high in the global university environment; producing students that will distinguish themselves in their fields of study across the globe. The race has already begun. At present, it has about 3300 students from the over 8,000 students that applied. The student population will keep growing and the school will also continue to expand.

Did you set out to become a legislator or you saw an opportunity and tapped into it?

Actually, it was never my mission; but due to good deeds within the community, I was called by a league of friends to contest because of the leadership qualities they saw in me and today, I have surpassed people's expectations in terms of delivering qualitative lawmaking. This allowed me to return for a second term as the only unopposed candidate in Lagos State during the primary election. As we approach the general elections, we are very close to victory.

What are your functions as the Chairman of House Services?

As the chairman of the House Services, it is my responsibility to ensure that the welfare of lawmakers and staff of the house is prioritised.

LASUED is envisioned and managed to mirror the Centre of Excellence credo of Lagos State, the world-class qualities of Mr. Governor's projects, and the megacity status of the state.

What would you consider the most challenging part of your mandate as a lawmaker?

The truth is that we have challenges that are largely from our constituencies. Each arm of government has specific roles and our primary assignment is law making, good representation, and oversight functions. But people will expect you to execute projects that are beyond our means. The challenge is that many of them (constituents) don't know the difference between Executives and Legislators. As a legislature, there is a limit to what we can do; but our people do not understand. We can only facilitate projects; we can't execute projects. That is a major challenge we have.

Ten years from now, where do you envision that LASUED will be?

Lagos is a special state. At present, Lagos State University, LASU, is one of the best universities in West Africa. So, I expect the Lagos State University of Education to follow that path. In 10 years, we won't mind seeing LASUED becoming one of the best universities in Nigeria.

What is your message to new students in LASUED?

My message to them is that they need to concentrate on their education and they should disengage themselves from anything that will tarnish their image. They should focus on their education and not associate with any bad group that will harm their future. Their future should be more important to them. They should concentrate on their studies so that we will be proud of them and they would also be proud of themselves in the future.

Gown and Crown: Strengthening Relations with Host Communities

ometimes, and as had been witnessed across the country over the years, conflicts are inevitable between an institution with happy-go-lucky, easily excitable undergraduates and its host community because they are two distinct entities with different priorities and loyalties sharing the same restricted space.

Thus, the relationship between the town and the gown is critical to the survival of an institution. As the Provost of the Adeniran Ogunsanya College of Education (AOCOED) and now the pioneer Vice-Chancellor of the mutant institution, Prof. Bilkis Bidemi Lafajaji-Okuneye is cognisant of how tenuous the relationship between town and gown could be if not well managed. In her case, she said she has been working hard to strengthen the relationship.

"I met a very solid relationship between the school and the community. What I have done is improve on what I met.

There's nothing that happens even across the road that I will not be immediately called because of the relationship and because I operate an open-door policy. I relate with the Kabiyesi very well. The Oloto gave us a 200-seater capacity hall. This says a lot about our relationship. We also encourage the communities to report any erring student and when we get such, we do what we are supposed to do. So the community has confidence in us," she said.

In Ijanikin and Noforija where the LASUED maintains its campuses, there are high levels of cooperation between town and gown on issues like student accommodation, economic development, urban management, traffic control, inner city regeneration, skills development, social justice, and sport.

Between 2020 when she was appointed a provost and now in her new designation, Prof Lafajaji-Okuneye has visited all the kings in the two communities of Ijanikin and Epe. The next few pages are an indubitable reminder of those visits.

A GESTURE WORTHY OF EMULATION

Governor Babajide Sanwo-Olu has described the donation of a 250-capacity hall to the Lagos State University of Education by Oba Josiah Aina as a gesture worthy of emulation.

As part of activities marking the 15th anniversary of his kingship, the Olofo of Oto-Awori Kingdom, His Royal Majesty, Oba (Dr.) Josiah Olanrewaju Ilemobade Aina (Kuyamiku 1), donated a 250-capacity lecture hall to the Lagos State University of Education, LASUED. Governor Babajide Sanwo-Olu led a coterie of royal fathers to the inauguration of the hall recently.

The governor said that the Oba's gesture was worthy of emulation, as the facility would be complementary to those being built on the campus by the state government. He said that the buildings being erected on the campus were part of the projects initiated after the school was upgraded from a College of education to a university by the National Universities Commission (NUC).

The governor said that the Oba's gesture was worthy of emulation, as the facility would be complementary to those being built on the campus by the state government. He said that the buildings being erected on the campus were part of the projects initiated after the school was upgraded from a College of education to a university by the National Universities Commission (NUC).

Sanwo-Olu said that Lagos, as a big city with a high population of young people, was being underserved by one university, necessitating the need to raise the standards of LASPOTECH and Adeniran Ogunsanya College of Education. "Education and technology have been the key parts of our deliverables. This objective can only be achieved when we have standard tertiary institutions offering competitive opportunities to raise human capital.

"The late Alhaji Lateef Jakande gave us Lagos State University over 40 years ago. Why should we not build more on this solid foundation? As big as Lagos is, with a huge population, having one state university does not befit us.

"Lagos cabinet, with the approval of the House of Assembly and NUC, set up two more universities to complement LASU and we got the approvals to establish the schools at the same time.”

Sanwo-Olu said that the dream had come true and Oto-Awori Kingdom was a beneficiary. “The gesture of the Oto-Awori king to support our efforts to improve access to education with the donation of a lecture hall is an act that is worthy of emulation,” he said.

The governor announced that he had approved the construction of a 750-seater Lecture theatre on the LASUED campus and directed the procurement of two high-capacity buses for students to aid their mobility to and from the campus.

He also offered free campus-wide high-speed internet for research work and other academic usages. Sanwo-Olu used the occasion to appeal to towns enmeshed in communal crisis in the area to embrace peace.

He cautioned all parties against the destruction of properties and public facilities, stressing that development would only happen in an atmosphere of peace.

The governor congratulated Oba Aina for the milestones the kingdom attained during his reign, describing him as a man of peace.

“Kabiesi has not only invited us to celebrate with him on the occasion of his 15th coronation anniversary, but he has also challenged all of us in giving back to our communities. His gesture is worthy of emulation and this makes him a man of his word. This is why I personally came here to identify with him and the entire Oto-Awori Kingdom in the Badagry Division,” he said.

The Oba said that his gesture to support the government’s intervention in education was borne out of his pledge to assist indigent people, hence, surmounting impediments preventing them from going to school.

Oba Aina recalled how he could not finish his academic programme at the Ondo State University because of the N6, 000 fee. He promised to embark on more education-focused projects to support the government’s efforts.

LASUED Will Bring Economic Prosperity to Ijanikin

The Aladi Onijanikin of Ijanikin Kingdom, Oba Momodu Afolabi Ashafa, MFR, FNMC, is convinced that beyond the access of his people to qualitative university education, the birth of the Lagos State University of Education, LASUED, portends vast economic prosperity for Ijanikin, the Lagos suburb where the university is sited.

How did you take the news that the college would become a university?

Thank you very much. I was very happy when I heard the news that the college would be promoted to a university. Not just me, the entire Aworiland even extending to the Badagry division. Well, it's a college that I have been supporting for a long time. This year, I will clock 50 years on the throne. So, I have been fighting for that college since it was first a teacher's college then, a college of education, and now, a university of education. It is a very wonderful achievement for me and my community. I am one of the first class obas in Lagos State and, also, the eldest Oba in the state. I know very much about this place. So, the coming of a university is a big achievement and I heartily thank the governor who thought it fit to make this happen. I am very grateful to him.

What are your expectations of the university?

Well, I expect that the university should be well taken care of by the government. I have heard a lot about some courses being taken to Epe and it should not be so. They have to take care of the headquarters very well because we see it as a big achievement, not only for us or Lagos State alone, but the whole of Nigeria. The university is okay where it is because you know we are close to another country (Benin Republic). So, I am appealing to the government to see to that immediately.

Over the last couple of decades, how healthy or otherwise has the relationship been between the community and the university? And what has been your role in maintaining peace and harmony?

The relationship is very good and solid. We are a peace-loving people. There is no chaos. No grievance. We are all okay. We are cordial.

What impact do you think this institution will have on the larger community?

The university is going to bring big achievements to us, economic prosperity especially. We expect a boom in our economy because there will be many people coming here for studies. The buying and selling and even house rents will experience a boost. Our people here who could not go out for qualitative university education will simply get it here and at an affordable rate.

With the benefit of age, experience, exposure, and royal insight, what will your advice be to an undergraduate here?

My advice is that they should face their studies, avoid distractions, learn all that they can while here, and as soon as they graduate, make use of all the knowledge they must have acquired here because the world is rapidly changing and paper certificates alone cannot take you far.

Thank God for long life and thank God for

His grace upon you. 50years on the throne is no mean feat. How has it been?

Thank you. I must say that it has not been easy. I was a teacher before I became a king. I met this place a bush. I started praying and reconnecting with the right people just so that we could open Ijanikin up. Ijanikin was a small place before but we thank God for how big it has become. When I became king, my priority was security and education because there were no schools here. I think we only had one primary school – The Anglican Primary School – which stopped at Standard Three. After completing Standard Three; that was the end unless you go out to look for education. But when I came, I took education and security seriously. And you can see that in the number of big schools I have brought here. Now, we have many primary schools, which we didn't have before, and secondary schools – both federal and state and private. We have the Federal Government College here, the Eko University of Medical and Health Sciences, the National Post-graduate Medical College and so many more. I donated 200 acres of land for the establishment of the Federal Government College, Ijanikin, and also the establishment of the Lagos State Secondary School. We are proud of how far we have come.

Aside from all these, what would you consider your greatest achievement as Onijanikin?

So many that I cannot single one out. I have opened up Ijanikin's economy and education. I have turned this place into an educational hub. We have good markets here. This road (the Lagos-Badagry Expressway) was commissioned the day I was enthroned. The buildings here before were mud houses but now you have mansions everywhere. I thank God for how far we have come and what God has used me to achieve here.

Is there anything that you still hope to achieve for your people?

(Laughs) I am not about to die yet. I am looking forward to achieving many things, God sparing our lives. Particularly, the water that my people drink here – not like it is not good enough – but I want a better one, a pipe-borne water system. We want a stadium here because we have a large population of students. And as long as I am still alive, I will not stop disturbing the government on these things.

Can you tell us more about your journey through life?

I was born into a royal family. We were staunch Muslims. I told you that I was a teacher. I worked for about 14 years before succeeding my father as the Onijanikin. I am a man of peace. On my gate, you will see the inscription 'Royal Caste of Peace'. I went to Mecca as a practicing Moslem and thereafter, I went to Jerusalem because I was thinking of what religion would really make me happy. On coming back, I decided it was Christianity for me. I have a church here and I worship God in my palace because I know that there is nothing more than God in this life. In this community, I have all three religions here and there is no issue among them. I met with them and said I do not want any religious fight and that whatever any of them wants to do; they should let me know to avoid anything that will tarnish the image of our community. I even give them time to do whatever they want to do to avoid a conflict of interest.

Well done, sir. One year has passed since LASUED came into existence; what is your message to the school authority?

First of all, they have to cooperate with themselves and face their homework

*The university is going to bring big achievements to us, economic prosperity especially. We expect a boom in our economy because there will be many people coming here for studies. squarely. They must be thorough in their business and avoid cases of divide and rule. So, if they want to help, they should help everybody equally. And they must be friendly with the community and the community will also be friendly with them. But I like how the school had been operating. They carry us along in their activities.

His Royal Majesty,
OBA (DR.) JOSIAH OLANREWAJU
ILEMOBADE AINA
(Kuyamiku 1)

The Oloto of Oto Awori Kingdom of Lagos State

LASUED will boost our economy and attract more government presence to our community

His Royal Majesty, Oba (Dr.) Josiah Olanrewaju Ilemobade Aina (Kuyamiku 1) is the Oloto of Oto Awori Kingdom of Lagos State. Kabiyesi expresses his royal delight and celebrates LASUED on its anniversary

We would like to first congratulate Your Majesty on your 62nd birthday (January 25, 2023).

Thank you very much.

Kabiyesi, did you always imagine or dream about becoming a king while growing up?

I am from a royal family, and I believed I would be a king, which was rooted in my faith in God. I said that because even as somebody from a royal house, you have to believe in God because it is only if He says you will be anything that you will be.

What are your responsibilities as Oloto?

I have like eight towns and villages under me among which are Imude, Beru, Morogbo, Ibujewu, and Gborukan. I am their royal father; and the custodian of their culture and tradition. I discharge various duties on them.

How has the experience been for you in the last 15 years as the Oloto?

I need to thank God; my experience comprises a lot of things. When I ascended the throne, there were no smooth roads; but today, I give glory to God. Apart from roads, God also helped me achieve many other things for my community. You may or may not know that I am the 16th Oba in Awori. Yet, we didn't have a common palace; all my fifteen predecessors ruled from their various homes! But God helped me; I built a central palace as a legacy, which I have presented to the community and which other Obas that succeed me will enjoy. Believe me, I want to break records in Aworiland – that I am the longest Oba on the throne. In my community generally, there have been a lot of different changes over the last 15 years. Back then, there were no street lights, I provided three hundred and fifty poles in Oto Awori and many communities under my domain like Beru and Ogbotedeo. I have it in mind to donate more to Morogbo and Igbojegu because I haven't given them.

They should not forget the purpose that made them leave their communities for this place. They should know that they will be the ambassadors of not just the institution but the entire country; and that whatever they do today, the records will be there tomorrow and forever. They must all put in their very best.

Apart from that, I donated a hall to the Lagos State University of Education; it's a 350-seater hall. I also make donations to students from time to time.

What is the most challenging part of your role as the Oloto?

There will always be challenges; you just have to build your legacies. Even Jesus Christ had a lot of challenges. Prophet Mohammed had a lot of challenges, too. We have many challenges but we thank God that they are all under control.

The Adeniran Ogunsanya College had been here for a long time before it became a university of education. How have you been managing the relationship between the community and the institution?

There was no fight in the entire history of Adeniran Ogunsanya College. The first Executive Governor of Lagos State, Alhaji Lateef Jakande told us that if we wanted a College of Education, we had to tolerate them. We have been tolerating ourselves since inception.

How did you feel when you learnt that the college would become a university?

I thank God that I was there. I thank God for the transformation.

What impact does Kabiyesi think the university would have on the community?

It will boost the economy of the community. All the market sellers will have more people buying food from them. Even the landlords will benefit. I believe that once the school is here, the government too will assist the community.

What will Your Majesty's royal advice be to the undergraduates?

They should not forget the purpose that made them leave their communities for this place. They should know that they will be the ambassadors of not just the institution but the entire country; and that whatever they do today, the records will be there tomorrow and forever. They must all put in their very best.

LASUED has been well worth the long wait

His Royal Majesty, Alayeluwa Oba Kamorudeen Ishola Animashaun, The Oba Oloja of Epe Land, Arolugbade Elepe II, is the Vice Chairman, Lagos State Council of Obas and Chiefs; and the Paramount Ruler of Epe Division. The Royal Father reflects on the long wait for a university in his domain while expressing his joy that LASUED is well worth the wait.

On his feelings hearing about the establishment of the university:

I was and still am happy and excited that the university of education is finally in Epe Local Government. The long wait is now our reality. I was and still am happy and thankful to all the stakeholders for their sacrifice, time, and energy in ensuring that the university became a reality.

On the impact of the university in its first year

of existence:

Within just one year of locating the university in Epe, it has increased the business activities in the community; it has brought about a renewed hope for an increase in all phases of business relationships between indigenes, students, and staff of the university.

On his vision and expectations from the university:

My vision and hope are that more infrastructures would be put in place to accommodate the increasing number of students; more job opportunities should be created for indigenes and non-indigenes; and above all, good remuneration packages for lecturers and other personnel to avoid unnecessary strike actions.

On relationships between the school and the community:

The long wait for the creation of the university in Epe was accommodated by all; hence the relationship between students and indigenes will be ensured to continually be peaceful and collaborative by encouraging indigenes to live in peace as they have demonstrated in time past. Interestingly, some students who graduated from the school years back (when it was a college of education) have settled down in Epe, and they are doing well. I assure you that the co-existence between students and indigenes is smooth and will remain so.

On what more can be done for the university to make it deliver on its mandate:

Structures like staff quarters, hostels, creation of libraries, sports centres, medical centres, and at least one bank in that area.

On Governor Sanwo-Olu's performance in education:

The governor's performance on education matters is excellent. I applaud his capacity, his actions, and his investments in the growth of education in Lagos. The results are very clear and encouraging.

On what he expects of Mr. Governor in his second term:

Continuity in all areas is my take because the extent of development and growth within Lagos State needs all-around attention on a continuous and consistent basis.

Even though my exposure in the banking industry involves higher numbers and volumes, this position allows me to be part of a foundation of something that affects and will affect our youths and, surely, the future of the state and generations.

On challenges, if any, as a traditional ruler:

All the major challenges are well-managed, ranging from dispute resolutions, rendering of assistance, making interventions for the development and growth of our community; and other demands that come with the seat of the Paramount Ruler of Epe Land.

His royal advice for the students:

Education remains the key; as students, give it your very best. They must each come out with good grades.

They should make themselves tools and avenues of blessings and shun all forms of violence. The next giants of telecommunications and other businesses across the world are made in the classroom.

LASUED

will increase the population and accelerate the growth of
my domain

His Royal Majesty, Oba Babatunde Ogunlaja Aladeshojin is the paramount ruler of Odo Noforija Kingdom in the Eredo area of Epe Division, Lagos State. The Noforija campus of the Lagos State University of Education, LASUED, is located in his domain. The Royal Father spoke exclusively to OLAWUNMI ABIONA AND JEREMIAH JOSHUA on the first anniversary of the institution.

Congratulations on the establishment of the Lagos State University of Education in your domain. How do you feel about this, Kabiyesi?

Quite naturally, the siting of a campus of the Lagos State University of Education in Inaforija kingdom is a welcome and interesting development. We, in the community, are so happy to have our erstwhile college (Michael Otedola College of Primary Education) upgraded to a university. Initially, it was the Lagos State College of Primary Education. We had been agitating for the university, hoping it would stand alone, but we thank God that, at least, we have the university of education now. We are very happy.

What impact has the university brought to the community in its one-year existence?

When a college gets upgraded to a university, there is no doubt that there will be an increase in terms of population. The economy of that area must also improve. I'm very sure that there will be a lot of improvement when the school is fully in operation. The economy of the whole division will be very encouraging.

As a major stakeholder, what are your expectations and vision for the university? My vision and expectation of the university all depend on the management. Once the management is doing very fine, we, the stakeholders, will be happy as well and if they request any cooperation or assistance, we will do our best to meet up.

How does Kabiyesi think the community and the school can live together in peace and harmony?

We have been doing that already. I told you that the school was a college before and the college was established I think in 1984. Initially, it was planned to be a college of basic studies; but when (late Sir) Michael Otedola assumed office as Governor of Lagos State, the place was changed to a college of primary education. Since then, we have been living in harmony. As the school is growing bigger, we continue to work together. Presently, the campus is within the community; there is no how we will live without cooperation. We must cooperate in our collective interest.

What kind of infrastructure or investment would you like to see in the school?

The little we have for a start is encouraging. First, I need to commend the governor, Mr. Babajide Sanwo-Olu, for upgrading the college to a university. I do not doubt his integrity. Once he comes in for the second term, he will still do more because he is very passionate about education and infrastructure in many areas. I know the government is capable to do that and our community will give the little assistance we can.

How would you rate the administration of Governor Babajide Sanwo-Olu in the area of education in Lagos State?

Governor Babajide Sanwo-Olu is an achiever and he is a tolerant governor. I do not need to rate his administration. Before he became the governor he had been in the system; when he now assumed the office he has been performing miraculously. Now that he is aiming for a second term, my appeal to people is that continuity is very important in any administrative setup and that is why we are backing him fully so that there will be continuity of the good work he's been doing.

How challenging has it been as a ruler in a community like this, Kabiyesi?

I don't see it as a challenge because I'm from a royal family; I have been experiencing it before I was enthroned. When I became the ruler, it was not difficult; it is only when you are not from a royal family that you do not know where to go and how to come in. As for me, I can say that from the outset when I had not even known that I would become the king, people had been calling my daddy; 'Baba Oba' (the king's father). That was when I was still very young. So, it is not a challenge for me at all. I find it so comfortable to be on the throne of my forefathers.

(Governor Sanwo-Olu)...has been performing miraculously. Now that he is aiming for a second term, my appeal to people is that continuity is very important in any administrative setup and that is why we are backing him fully so that there will be continuity of the good work he's been doing.

What would you advise a young person going into the University of Education?

I will appeal to all the younger ones to desist from cultism; it is very important. The spate of cultism in our institutions is very alarming. When you want to be a teacher, you must be a good example; my appeal to them is that they should be good ambassadors of themselves, their families, the school, and the larger society.

We should all Contribute to Making LASUED a 21st Century Citadel of Learning

Oba (Dr) Odufolarin Olukayode Ogunsanwo, Telade IV is the Alara of Ilara Kingdom in the Epe Division of Lagos State. He expresses his delight with the establishment of LASUED and offers some royal counsel on how to make the institution great.

Congratulations, Kabiyesi, on the establishment of the Lagos State University of Education in your domain. How do you feel about this?

I felt so happy when I received the news, and I thank God for remembering our area for a good thing like this. I also thank the governor very much. It's something that we have been agitating for.

What impact has the university brought to the community in its one year of existence?

We are feeling the impact, especially in terms of our population. The economy of the area has also improved.

As a major stakeholder in this institution, what are your vision and expectation of the university?

Now that the institution has transformed from a college of primary education to a full-fledged university, we expect that there will be better student enrolment.

Our students here will now have full-fledged degrees covering various aspects of education. We expect that there will be increased student enrolment because they will be better equipped. By extension, it will engender good training and teaching for our students in primary and post-primary schools.

What kind of infrastructure or investment would you like to see in the school?

In terms of infrastructure, if you look at the campus, more than 60 percent of the amenities there are being financed and sponsored by the TETFUND. Now that it's a full-fledged university, we expect that the state government will also put a lot of resources into the campus. We also appeal to all our stakeholders who have been supporting the university not to relent; they should help to ensure that transportation to the university is enhanced. We want our successful sons and daughters in the private sector to continue to assist the university in developing its infrastructure. As for the programmes, I'd like to stress that any form of education that is not technology-based, its success story will not be complete. So, we want them to assist by sponsoring technology deployments to the campus and its programmes. We should all contribute to making the school a 21st Century citadel of learning. Yes, some of our sons, like Mr. Femi Otedola, have been of great assistance to the cause of the institution in terms of structural development, but we want to implore others to emulate this gesture by contributing to its rapid development.

How would you rate the administration of Governor Babajide Sanwo-Olu in the area of education?

Our amiable governor, Mr. Babajide Sanwo-Olu, has a template called T.H.E.M.E.S Agenda. If you want to rate him based on the agenda of which education is one of the pillars, he has done very well. Through his visionary leadership and, in particular, his commitment to education, Lagos State can now boast of four tertiary institutions i.e. Lagos State University (LASU), now

We should all contribute to making the school a 21st Century citadel of learning. Yes, some of our sons, like Mr. Femi Otedola, have been of great assistance to the cause of the institution in terms of structural development, but we want to implore others to emulate this gesture by contributing to its rapid development.

rated as one of the best in Africa; the Lagos State University of Education and the Lagos State University of Science and Technology. We also have the Lagos State University Teaching Hospital (LASUTH), a medical school. Significantly, too, all of them are spread all over the five divisions of Lagos State. So, we are indeed very proud of him. He has done very well with the T.H.E.M.E.S agenda, which cuts across all sectors of the economy. We want to implore him to do more and more and more. We pray that by the special grace of God, he will come for a second term to continue to dish out the dividends of democracy to Lagosians.

What other area would you advise him to concentrate his energy on in his second term?

I will advise that His Excellency and his team continue to look at the improvement in education from primary to post-primary and tertiary institutions because education is the foundation of knowledge and development in any nation. We also want improvements in the transportation sector. He has done well in that area by exploring the multi-modal means of transportation – road, waterways, and rail, but because of the population of Lagos, he needs to do more. The blue rail line was recently commissioned by President (Muhammadu) Buhari. But we still feel that the water transportation area should be looked into because almost 70 percent of Lagos is surrounded by water. The natural provision (of water) makes water transportation a veritable one so that people can have options rather than moving on the road. Then, improvement in the area of power supply is very much needed. We know power generation and distribution are on the Exclusive List, but the state government can create that platform and the logistics to complement whatever the federal government is doing. Power generation is an area that will assist in industrial development and also assist businesses to continue to thrive. We also want the government to look at the area of security. We have the Lagos State Security Trust Fund, which helps to equip all our security outfits/agencies. But because our area is a border town between our state and other western states and even to the south-south, we want an improvement in the area of security to ward off any form of invasion from kidnappers, armed robbers, etc.

What will be your advice to youths going to the university?

We want to advise the students that will be admitted or those that have been admitted into the new Lagos State University of Education that they should see their going in there as a calling from the Almighty God since they will be coming out with education-based degrees. We expect them to see themselves as leaders; and those that people will look up to. They should see themselves as rendering good services to our children who will also become future leaders. There is a reward in providing leadership to the upcoming generation, and we want to thank God for a place like Lagos State where as a teacher, you can rise to become the best in the civil service by becoming a Tutor General/Permanent Secretary. There is a reward for them already on earth. Therefore, they should ensure that they make the best use of the opportunity that the government has provided.

LASUED has been a Blessing to us

Oba (Dr.) Sulaiman Adesina Raji, Asade 1, the Oniba of Iba Kingdom, reflects on the upgrading of the erstwhile Adeniran Ogunsanya College of Education to the Lagos State University of Education disclosing, among other things, that he was once a staff of the former! Among other positives, he averred that the school has been a blessing to his community.

How does Your Majesty feel about the establishment of the Lagos State University of education?

I was very happy that the government could bring the university to us; we now have two universities in our area. I thank the Governor of Lagos State for what he has done. You know that as humans, we think, we wish, and we pray, but it is God that brings things to fulfilment. It is what God has asked the government of Lagos State to do that they have done, and we thank them for that. God almighty will continue to help the governor and his administration and will also continue to put our love in his heart so that we may receive more good things from him. What he has done is encouraging to us, the Awori people. He wants us to continue to be learned. God will continue to increase him in wisdom.

What impact has the university brought to the community in its one year of existence?

Since the institution was upgraded, our area has been feeling the changes. Our children that didn't see the need to go to school are now ready to go. If you look around, you will see that the population has increased. A lot of people are looking for accommodation. Our economy, which had dropped, is also picking up. It's booming. The upgrading of the school has been impacting our children and our families positively. There are great impacts if we are not going to deceive ourselves.

What is your earliest recollection of the legacy college in Ijanikin?

You may not know this: when the school was still a college of education, I worked there before I became a king. In the days of Akewusola (may his soul rest in peace), when Professor Noah was the Provost, he and Pa Adebowale, I was their Chief Security Officer. The school can't forget about me because when cultism was rampant in the school, I was called upon. It was through me that God saved the school from the menace. Then, I was living at Ota-Awori and God took control through me. If you see the school now, you will see that there is peace and everything is going smoothly. There is nothing like cultism again in our area. No more riots, no more killings; everything is going on smoothly in the school. Now, everybody wants their children to go to school, unlike before when parents would not want their children to go to school because of cultism. It is not so again! Historically speaking, the Aworis used to depend on landed properties; but now we have changed, education is now our land. We now want our children to go to school and get educated, and that is why we cherish the bringing of the school to us because it is an everlasting blessing.

How do you think the community and the school can live together in peace and harmony?

If there is a good relationship between the school management and community leaders, there'll be peace and harmony. The school's management should take some pieces of advice from the kings. Some sacrifices are done in the communities for peace, and the school should recognise and respect such. If there is a change in the head of the school management, he or she should pay visits to the King and solicit his cooperation and support for a successful tenure. It's the king that knows the happenings in his domain. Take LASU, for instance, since I became the king, you can't hear of any riots between the students and the community, very much unlike before. There was a time that LASU students and Iba community people clashed, and lives were lost. Since I mounted the throne of my forefathers, we have been living in peace and harmony, just like a family. Our children are now students of the school. A place where our children are and they are becoming successful, we can't allow anybody to spoil the place. If there is no peaceful co-existence, the government may decide to move the school away from the place; we don't want that and that is why we must make sure there is peace all the time. The head of the school and the head of the community must join hands to ensure they coexist peacefully.

What kind of infrastructure or investment would you like to see in the school?

It will be good if there are hostels in the school. When the school was still a college of education, I constructed the gate and the seats close to the gate where the students can sit to read because I had received grace from the school. I was the first to donate such, and I have not stopped. Very soon, we will have a small health centre and a library. There is nothing in the world like education. It is education that takes one to important places. A child that is not educated will be a slave to his mates. That is why we are happy that the university is a great blessing to us. Lands will finish, but education won't finish.

How would you rate the administration of Governor Babajide Sanwo-Olu in the area of education in Lagos State?

Governor Sanwo-Olu's administration is the most passionate government on education. He doesn't play with education at all. I was at a place where we saw a child hawking, and he asked his driver to stop. He sent for the child and asked him why he wasn't in school like his mates. He paid his school fees. He did that for a child he didn't know or know the parents. This is not hearsay; it happened in my presence. He is someone that wants all the people of Lagos to be useful to themselves. The upgrading of the erstwhile colleges has never happened in the history of Lagos State. Again, look at when he pays teachers' salaries. He doesn't owe them. He appreciates the role teachers played in his life. I salute him; I appreciate him. God will continue to enrich his knowledge. I love him because of the passion he has for education and all the beautiful things he is doing in Lagos State. Look at the area of roads, and security; no state is as secure as Lagos State in Nigeria. God will continue to help him and will let him come back for the second term.

What would you advise a young person going into LASUED?

My advice to all our young ones is that there is nothing better than facing their studies and they must not join bad gangs. They must be determined and focused. It is only education that will take them to any height or level in life. If they don't want to be slaves to their mates, they should face their studies. God will continue to give them wisdom.

HEALTH IS WEALTH

Perhaps more than anyone else, the Vice-Chancellor, Prof. Bidemi Bilkis Lafajai-Okuneye, understands the important role of exercises in the well-being of humans. A Professor of Health Education and keen sports lover, she has now parlayed her passion and profession into establishing an aerobics programme for the staff and interested students. The session holds on the second and last Friday of every month. The aerobics programme, she said, aims to promote interpersonal relationships among staff and serve as an avenue for the mass participation of staff and students in physical exercises. “We also use the programme to mobilise the body organs and systems of participants for daily activities, thereby, enhancing productivity on the job,” she said.

How I started the agitation for LASUED

Alagbe David Sewanu was a Political Science and Social Studies student at the then Adeniran Ogunsanya College of Education. He was also the students' union president between 2019 and 2021. Popularly known as Doxology, it was during his tenure that he attended a Town Hall meeting (in 2020) organised by the Lagos State House of Assembly and which had political and community leaders in attendance. During his speech, he made what has turned out to be the historic 'first call' for the upgrading of the college into a university, challenging the member representing the constituency, Honourable Tijani, popularly called Emir, to take the matter up and push it with all the powers at his disposal. This tiny spark became a ball of light and a positive force, right from the Town Hall to the community; the hallowed chamber of the House of Assembly; and then to the exalted office of Governor Babajide Olusola Sanwo-Olu; and history got made! In a brief chat with AMOS OLADELE, Doxology, sorry, David, reminisces on this historic happenstance that has given birth to a historic reality.

Can you recall the event that led you into making the historic call for the upgrading of your Alma Mater, Adeniran Ogunsanya College of Education, to a university?

I was invited to a town hall meeting organised by the Lagos State House of Assembly. The discourse centred on the environment and erosion. When I was called to speak, I, among other things, made a call for the upgrading of the school to a university and challenged Hon. Tijani (Emir), representing our constituency, to help us to push for it. And I advanced several reasons for this. Luckily for me, for the institution, and even the entire state,

Hon. Tijani took it up at the House of Assembly! I didn't stop there; I wrote a letter to the Special Adviser to the Governor on Education, Barr. Tokunbo Wahab, who subsequently hosted me. We discussed at length how the school could actually be transformed into a university. I also wrote to the governor, and I was privileged to have a one-on-one meeting with him on the subject. At my meeting with Mr. Governor, he promised to work on it. And true to his words, just a few months after, they made the move. I am personally grateful to God; and to all of them.

What were the various reasons you advanced to justify your agitation for the upgrade?

First, I reminded everyone in attendance that the erstwhile Tai Solarin College of Education in Ogun State had been upgraded to Tai Solarin University of Education, TASUED. I pointed out that the then Adeniran Ogunsanya College of Education, AOCOED, was the oldest tertiary

I am even happier because they have given the mantle of leadership of the new institution to the right person, Professor Bilikis Bidemi Lafajji-Okuneye. She is a round peg in a round hole. She's just perfect for it! She is a leader that can actually lead thousands of soldiers to the battlefield, lead from the front and bring her thousands of soldiers back home in one piece, after a resounding success.

institution owned by the Lagos State government; and, to be sincere, the school had actually tried; it had produced a lot of legends, mentors, HODs, and many people in different sectors. The third point was that the school had all the requirements to become a university as of then. For instance, it had over 200 Ph.D. degree holders that were lecturers. There was even a Professor in the Fine Arts department. I think it was only one lecturer that was a Master's degree holder, then. Those were the things that I laid before the lawmaker. When, finally, the bill for the establishment of the institution came out, I represented the students' union government in defending both LASUED and LASUTECH.

Did anything, in particular, provoke or inspire your agitation for the institution?

Yes, something actually did. There was a time when a beneficial programme was organised for students by the Lagos State government, but it was restricted to only B.Sc. and HND students. I had a very strong interest in partaking in the programme, but I could not just because I was an NCE student. That grieved my heart very seriously and I decided that I would do whatever I could do along that line before handing over; that I would contribute my little quota to making sure that NCE was brought to an end in my school. Apart from that, you know that anywhere anyone goes with an NCE certificate, they will tell you that you are a teacher and not needed there. This naturally brings embarrassment to us as NCE graduates. As an NCE holder, you are limited to only teaching. Meanwhile, I must not forget to put on record, with sincere appreciation, that the current, pioneering Vice Chancellor of LASUED guided me a lot because I was always briefing her about my ideas and moves. She guided me in such matters like how to write my letters; how to speak; how to comport myself, and so on and so forth. Very importantly, too, I must add that I did not stop my efforts after handing over as SUG President.

Luckily, I was voted in as the National President of the National Association of Colleges of Education Students. I also used that platform to fast-track the movement. I did not relent until it was achieved.

What feelings does the establishment of the university give you; and what are your expectations of the institution?

I am so happy that the little effort turned out big and that it did not end in futility. I am both glad and grateful that the Lagos State government deemed it fit to fulfill the promise given to me when I had an interaction session with Mr. Governor and his people. I am even happier because they have given the mantle of leadership of the new institution to the right person, Professor Bilikis Bidemi Lafajaji-Okuneye. She is a round peg in a round hole. She's just perfect for it! She is a leader that can actually lead thousands of soldiers to the battlefield, lead from the front and bring her thousands of soldiers back home in one piece, after a resounding success. The school is in safe hands. Its future is very bright.

How come you are called Doxology?

Yeah! That's my nickname. I am an avid reader of novels. So, whenever I come across a vocabulary (new word), I underline it so as to go check its meaning. One day, while reading a novel, I came across the word, doxology. I checked for its meaning and found out that it means giving praise to God. Thereafter, I printed the word, Doxology on all my t-shirts; then people started calling me Doxology; that was how the name stuck.

“In the next 10 years, other universities will be following LASUED”

Mrs. Bernice Omotayo Issa-Raimi, Principal Assistant Registrar

First, I'd like to say a big thank you to God for giving us a leader like Professor Bilikis Lafiaji-Okuneye as our pioneering substantive vice-chancellor. I believe that in the next 10 years if she is reappointed for another term, other universities will be following LASUED. Also, she is a teacher by profession; has a vision and mission, and I know that the governor has appointed the right person for the position. I am quite sure that with her and other Principal Officers, the sky is the beginning for us.

“LASUED will be known for excellence in turning out teachers and professionals”

Dr. (Mrs). Omolola Aina Oladele, Former Provost of AOCOED and member of the

Mathematics Education Department

I expect that the new university will become a world-class institution, ranking in the single digits position, and be known for excellence in the turning out of teachers and professionals in other disciplines. In 10 years, I expect that we would have gone very far because all the staff in this institution, both academic and admin, are poised to deliver quality and efficiency on the job so that the students we produce will market the university.

We will put in all that we have to produce very effective and efficient graduates who will be functional, not just theoretical graduates; graduates that would apply what they learn to fit in easily into the real world and make headway, especially in this technological age.

“We will make a great global impact”

Dr. Adedayo Dawodu, Dean, College of Specialised and Professional Education

Going by our motto, we are unique and professional; we want to build a unique university, which is why we are the first university of education in Lagos State. Our goal is to prepare and produce highly skillful, impact-making teachers. And, going by our achievements so far, the morning is already showing the day. We expect that in the next 10 years, we will make a great global impact. I am quite optimistic that we will have interactions with global universities because we're unique and our goal is to build skillful professional teachers.

"Our students will be able to compete with their counterparts all over the world"

Mrs. Ogabi Airobomagbon Bosede, Principal Assistant Registrar

For my expectations of LASUED, I look forward to a technologically-driven university; that would be first among equals with zero tolerance for examination malpractices. Our students should be able to compete with their counterparts across the world. In 10 years, with the calibre of our current VC who knows her onions so well, an achiever and go-getter, I do not doubt that we would have achieved so much; and with the support of the Visitor to the University (Mr. Governor), so much would be achieved.

"We will be seen as the first among equals in teacher education"

Dr. Moshood Babatunde Lawal, Director, Academic Planning and Quality Assurance

My expectations for the new university are quality teaching delivery; raising the bar of the teaching profession through our training, and getting to a pedestal where we are internationally recognised. I'm thinking of a situation where we will be seen as the first among equals in teacher education because of the uniqueness of the program as a specialized university. So, we want to produce world-class teachers. Meanwhile, producing world-class teachers is not by just word of mouth. Our vice-chancellor has that target right from the word go, and she has been driving us towards that. That is why, within a very short time, we can take off, and we took off brilliantly!

"LASUED will be competing with great schools abroad in 10 years"

Ogungbemile Olusola Stella (Mrs.), the Senior College Counsellor

My expectation for LASUED is high. I wish LASUED to be the best teacher training institution, if possible, in the whole world; at least, it should be able to compete with the best of its kind abroad. We are aiming to have a very high standard like every other such institution abroad because it was the oldest institution before it was converted, but we want an improvement in what we have been producing. I believe that in 10 years, there will be no more issues; it will be competing with great schools abroad that even from West African countries, students would be coming to LASUED; we will even be having exchange programs with schools outside Nigeria.

"Our products will have what it takes to contribute positively to the development of the nation and the world at large"

Dr. (Mrs.) Mary Oluwakemi Odumosu, Ag. Dean, College of Science Education

I expect that we will become the best because only the best is good for the College of Science Education. I want the school to be the best in academic delivery; in the quality of the students that we produce. We want to be known globally for the products of the college and the university at large. It will be a household name in 10 years because our products will be known all over the world; they will have what it takes to contribute positively to the development of the nation and the world at large such that wherever you see our products, you will know that this person is coming from the Lagos State University of Education because of the quality.

"LASUED will produce people who can man the economy of the nation and even beyond"

Dr. Rasheed Adegbenro Dawodu, Ag. Dean, Student Affairs

In terms of expectation, it is nothing short of this: this university will become a world-class university. By the grace of God, God will take us to that level. And, 10 years from now, I have a big expectation for this university to produce excellent graduates, not only at the graduate level alone but also at postgraduate levels; people who can man the economy of the nation and even beyond; those are the calibre of graduates we are hoping to produce in the next 10 years.

"We are confident that this university will go places"

Faddekemi Margret Awobiyi, Head of the Legal Department

We are grateful to God and the Lagos State Government for doing us this honour to have made us a university. We are confident that this university will go places. We are centrally located; we are in the heart of Lagos, and with our Vice-chancellor being a female academic and a mother, we know that we will go places already. Therefore, in the next 10 years, we would have produced great teachers of international standards such that when they go out, they can represent us very well and would be proud to say, "we are pioneer students of LASUED." Even when we were at Adeniran Ogunsanya College of Education, we were rated very high internationally; how much more now that we are a university. We are very expectant; we are looking forward; the sky can't be our limit.

"We will be one of the best universities around"

Dr. (Mrs.) Idowu Abosede, a Senior Lecturer and Head of Dept., Chemical Science

We have very good hands here, and I know that with the input of all the good hands, this university is starting on a very good ground. I am sure that in 10 years, we will be one of the best universities around.

"My expectation is to be trained to become a highly qualified, professional teacher"

Adetutu Bolaoluwatito Olamide, Department of Health education

I got to know about LASUED on the radio and I got interested and applied. My expectation is to be trained to become a highly qualified, professional teacher. I also expect that the school would keep growing in infrastructural development.

"LASUED should do a great job by treating us fairly and equally"

Pelemo Esther Oluwasola, Department of Health Education

The fact that the university is new inspired me to be a pioneer student. The first time I came, I was amazed. The school is equipped with a good and conducive environment; it parades good lecturers and facilities. I expect the school to do a great job by treating us fairly and equally to enable us to achieve our goals and actualise our dreams.

"LASUED has been very innovative"

OLUWOLE Motopeda Ayobami, Human Kinetics

I was attracted by the fact that LASUED, being a new institution, offers us an opportunity to make history. Luckily for all of us, the institution has been very innovative, and it maintains a very high standard in virtually everything. I can confidently say that it is at least 90% practical-oriented. My expectation is that the school would build us into not just educational leaders but also people of very high morals as students.

"With time, LASUED would become one of the best universities in Nigeria"

Daso Daso, Mathematics Education Department

The transformation of Adeniran Ogunsanya College of Education to Lagos State University of Education gave me great motivation to apply to LASUED. I expect LASUED to try in the best possible way to improve the school structurally and academically. I know that with time, LASUED will become one of the best universities in Nigeria.

"I am encouraged by the facilities"

Balogun Ayodele Tanimola, Human Kinetics Department

My dad encouraged me to apply to this university. Being here, I am quite encouraged by the fact that there are complete facilities for sporting activities; convenient lecture rooms;

good relationships amongst students and lecturers and between them; we enjoy uninterrupted power supply, and more!

"I will be one of the best products that the institution will produce"

Samuel Covenant Oluwaseun, Computer science

I chose to come to LASUED knowing full well that I would be one of the best products that the institution will produce as one of their pioneer students. Besides, LASUED is a great place to learn and explore my course of study. I expect that the school will get me exposed to intensive lectures and trainings; thus making me become one of the best products in the world such that I will go ahead to impact my community and the world at large positively.

"LASUED is a good school to attend to become a professional in education"

Mustapha Tobiloba Grace, Biology Department

I opted for this institution because I considered it to be a good school for me to attend to become a professional in education. And, I hope to come out in flying colors at the end of my course of study.

"I am enjoying my course and the school"

Achugbue Precious, College of Science Education, Health Education Department

I initially chose LASU, but my score was not up to its cut-off mark. Later on, I heard about LASUED which offers Health Education, which is somehow related to what I applied to LASU for. I simply jumped at it and here I am enjoying the course and the school.

"I am here to gather vast knowledge and experience about both my course and life in general"

Mogaji Adam Abolaji, B.Sc. Biology

I chose to come to LASUED to become an erudite scholar in my field, and also be a guide to students who will come under my tutelage in the future. I also wish to positively change people's perspectives about taking a course of study in education.

I expect that here, I will gather vast knowledge and experience about both my course and life in general; and also be enriched with good morals and principles.

"I look forward to the provision of more world-class infrastructure"

Ogabi Rebecca Ayomide, Health Education Department

I'm proud of the fact that Lagos State University of Education is generally equipped with better information resources and big libraries, more than other older institutions. The school has highly qualified professors and lecturers all of who deploy better teaching methodologies.

My expectations from the schools and the government are that more and more world-class infrastructure would be provided such that our learning environment will continue to be conducive.

"I am happy and proud to be here"

Ajileye Daniel Oluwadamilare, Biology Education

I expect that here, I will gather vast knowledge and experience about both my course and life in general; and also be enriched with good morals and principles

I had a low JAMB score, which put paid to my initial attempt to enter another university. Interestingly, my ending up here has not been a disappointment in any way. Here, we have more conducive classrooms and laboratories. Honestly, I am happy and proud to be here. And I will make the best of it.

"I expect the university to achieve greatness in no time"

Zainab Hammed Oyinkansola, Health Education

I chose this university because I heard it was a great school with a good environment and teaching facilities; moreover, it offers B. Sc. degree. Since I got admitted, I have not been disappointed in any way. I expect the university to achieve greatness in no time; remain unique and professional, just as it is now.

PAY YOUR TAX AND LET'S GROW TOGETHER!!!

PAY NOW.
LET'S KEEP LAGOS WORKING

As Lagos State moves towards meeting the needs of a mega city, LIRS continues to position itself as the major funding arm.

Pay your tax!

It is your civic responsibility, it is the law.
